

1.
 - It's a beautiful day out, isn't it? It's nice to have a little free time. While you're out, you ought to do some exploring. You can visit the Capitol, the base it holds, or even check out the landscape and small towns roundabout. Watch out for wild Creatures, and be careful around PVP areas. The rebels hold those lands, and there are no rules in rebel territory.
2.
 - (Granny type) I can smell the capitol from here. Lousy, stinking... what? Old ladies have a sixth sense for that kind of thing.
 - I'd rather die than go to the Capitol. At least with dying, I'd be taking my chances with hell.
3.
 - (little kid) I want to fly one of those! My dad won't let me because he says they're dangerous. You look old enough! You should try flying one of those!
4.
 - (capitol soldier) I hear the Glitch is getting stronger. Won't be long now 'till the war is over and the Glitch is free. At least, I hope so.
 - (villager) The glitch continues to gain strength. Don't those fools at the Capitol know its power? They'll kill us all!
5.
 - (little kid) Why do the Heroes get special abilities, but I don't? It's not fair. I can't even finish my homework in time.
6.
 - My grandma said that on the Island of Kartan, people can fly, and the roads are paved with gold!
 - I heard there's so much magic in the air on Kartan that it can give you allergies.
 - If you eat anything on Kartan, you can never leave. Which sucks because I hear they have great bagels.
 - I think the more time you spend on Kartan, the less human you become. I think my mother-in-law must've been an exchange student or something.
7.
 - Now that the glitch is free, it changes something about our reality each day.
 - I hope the local university has a great geography program, because the Glitch keeps bringing new territories to our world that have yet to be explored. Who knows what's in them?
 - I think I've been turned down by every woman on the island. It makes me glad that the Glitch is free, because it's bringing new civilizations to our reality, and new civilizations mean new dating prospects!
8.
 - Some people say "Island Zero". Some people say "Island Oh". Personally, I don't worry about it, because I just call it "home"
 - Why do they call us "Island 0"? You might as well call us "The Island of Losers."

- You know why we're Island 0? Because we're the first. You'd think that would mean we'd be Island 1, but... I guess this made more sense to the bigwigs in the Capitol.

9.

- You know, you should watch your back after dark, or stay inside. The Glitch can be cool, but... it also creates creatures that come out at night—scary ones. It can get pretty dicey around here after the sun goes down.
- Has anyone told you about the Night Creatures yet? They're the reason you should seek shelter when the sun goes down. These creatures are brought here by the Glitch and prowl around at night. Be careful.

10.

- It seems strange to me that, after a whole war to discover the Golden Temple, there were only a few guards around it to protect it. Just seems anticlimactic to me.

11.

- You know, after the war between light and darkness, the Glitch brought Kartan to our current reality. It did so because it has the most followers out of anywhere in our universe, so so that it could be closer to its followers.

12.

- The Glitch is destruction incarnate. The Divine Prophecy says that its darkness will win and eliminate the light. I don't know what they're thinking over on Kartan, but that just doesn't seem like a good idea to me.
- We don't have anything to worry about. The Divine Prophecy says the Glitch will be freed and destroy the Light. We just have to be patient and keep fighting.
- Sometimes, I think I can feel the Glitch's energy inside myself. It makes me shiver...