Game Description:

The Age of Rage is an online co-op game for the rebel in all of us. Tasked with leading a group of angry citizens, players must decide if, how, and when to pool their resources. Everyone must choose their own path forward! Will you lead a ruling class family, and wield the power and influence that goes along with it? Or will you start from the bottom and fight to become a leader of the people who works to disrupt the status quo? Based loosely on the Roman Republic, two houses of Parliament allow players to vote on legislation, or even charter their own laws using their power, influence and wealth. You must decide what's the right path forward with the help of rich, dynamic infographics. They range from basic information, such as cost per area, to more intricate insight, such as differences in outcome when only buying from renters vs. family owned and operated businesses. Players can change the world by using their combined resources to purchase the rank and power required. Will you maximize your influence and climb to the top? Only you can decide in the Age of Rage.

Pitch Script:

Hey there, are you rich? Probably not... Like most of us, you probably had to work for what you have. But while you were busy building working for your future, your future was being stolen away. Trust fund babies had the entire game stacked in their favor from the very start thanks to their parent's money. So what's a man (or woman) supposed to do when the world bets big against them? Well, it's time to bet back, and bet hard! The Age of Rage was made for anyone who's ever wanted to flip the "natural order" of the social world on its head. Work together with other players to infiltrate the highest levels of society in an important mission to dismantle the power structure. Be sure to pick your allies carefully, cause It's us vs. them in an all-out power struggle to stay on top. The future is up to you!