MEDIA GROUP

Stephen Ruiz is an outstanding journalist and editor who would be an invaluable addition to any team. He is curious about the world and a quick study, making him a natural fit for any assignment thrown his way. His attention to detail is second to none.

I have watched Stephen juggle a wide range of duties at the Orlando Sentinel during the past 12 years, deftly handling a high level of stress and demanding deadlines. He was an exceptional editor and manager, mentoring a mix of entry level and experienced employees. Stephen could be trusted to quickly catch any written error, a skill we miss dearly since his departure. He also managed a vast team of freelance workers, coordinating their assignments while staying within the company's budget constraints.

He moved on from his management duties to become an online producer, coordinating our publication's morning news coverage. The job required comfort with our content management system, strong news judgment and the ability to thrive under pressure.

Finally, Stephen was a talented reporter and writer skilled at interviewing people about a wide range of subjects and delivering unique stories about the Central Florida community.

If I had the opportunity, I would be grateful to hire Stephen Ruiz. I'm certain anyone who chooses to work with him in the future will not be disappointed.

Sincerely,

Iliana Limón Romero
