

Selected Headlines and Titles

by Colin Garrison
cpg295@gmail.com

Benchmarking for Software Developers

[for a Microsoft white paper I edited]

Bike is Volga but not common

Bellevue firm to sell vintage Russian motorcycles in U.S.

[for a Seattle Times article I copy edited]

Billie Holiday: Fallen Angel

[for my America's Best Writers and Artists web site]

Chutist cracks skull in Columbia tower leap

[for a Seattle Post-Intelligencer article I copy edited]

Death in Venice Beach

[for a humorous short story I published in the Seattle Review; about a screenwriter hired to write someone's last words]

Decorate + Collect

[for an International Poster Gallery web advertisement]

Ebb and Floe

[for a humorous short story I wrote about a polar bear trapped on a floe by the melting of the ice]

For mail brides, 'I do' often a preface to trauma

[for a Seattle Post-Intelligencer article I copy edited]

Grace Kelly: The Snow Queen

[for my America's Best Writers and Artists web site]

Herman Melville: The Castaway

[for my America's Best Writers and Artists web site]

John Wayne: The Guardian

[for my America's Best Writers and Artists web site]

Katharine Hepburn: The Daredevil

[for my America's Best Writers and Artists web site]

Kathie Lee and Her Two Husbands

With Frank she's a doe-eyed love bunny; with Regis, a chirruping hot tamale. The two "Mrs. Giffords" is one überwife's response to the postfeminist dilemma

[for an article I line edited in M magazine]

Microsoft calls it 'Wizard'; some say 'Big Brother' more like it

[for a Seattle Post-Intelligencer article I copy edited]

Our Latest Poster Scores

[for a postcard by International Poster Gallery promoting new acquisitions; the image was of a football player]

Stress Rehearsal

For pilots learning to fly the 777, Boeing's simulator brings one crisis after another

[for a Seattle Post-Intelligencer article I copy edited]

Striking gold in California: inventors unveil urine battery

[for a Seattle Post-Intelligencer article I copy edited]

The Year of Painting Dangerously

[for promotional copy I wrote for a one-man show by artist Mark Gould at Giacobbe-Fritz Fine Art]