

Fashion news

At-home leisure-wear, clothing with a cause, stylish suitcases, plus Ljubenka's advice about seasonal colour.

Edited by FLEUR MEALING

ASK LJUBENKA

Q What is the "colour of the season" this winter? And how can I add it to my wardrobe?

A Pantone Colour is a colour-matching system universally used by many industries. Pantone unveils a colour of the year and the top colours for each season (spring/summer and autumn/winter). For autumn/winter 2019, these are punchy rich red tones (like burgundy), olive greens, bold blues and golden yellows. To incorporate these hues without making a huge commitment, introduce them in your accessories, such as a bag, shoes, belt, jewellery, hat or scarf. Or invest in a key piece like a jacket or coat that can be worn with existing wardrobe staples. A jumper is another way to incorporate seasonal colours. Punchy reds work well with beige, cream, caramel and navy tones. Olive greens can be worn with denim, camel and black tones, and blue hues look great with black, gold or cream. Golden yellows can be used with most colours – just use your common sense and trust yourself. Fashion should be fun and an expression of who you are and what you are feeling, so experiment and play! See Ljubenka on Instagram @holdtheglamour.

WOMEN HELPING WOMEN

Shop for a good cause... Everlasting, set up by Kiwi stylist Anna Paterson (above), is a not-for-profit preloved clothing outlet dedicated to helping women in need feel good by ensuring they look fabulous.

To find out how to donate or shop, visit everlasting.org.nz.

Laidback luxe

Lie back and relax in Postie's loungewear collection. The soft fabric and easy fit of these pieces make them the perfect addition to any winter wardrobe.

Twist front top, $20; waffle hooded top, $22; and lounge pants, $22 each. postie.co.nz

ON TOUR

Travel in style with a Saben suitcase. The New Zealand brand has created lightweight, hard-case luggage that comes in black or dusky rose with metallic rose gold finishes. The range is available in three sizes, including carry-on sized. Priced from $329. saben.co.nz.

