DEMDACO®

Spring is in the Air...

At DEMDACO, we believe that every product creates a conversation. That's how we hope to participate in the meaningful moments of people's lives. We don't create these moments, but we aspire to make them a little better for you. This is why we love this time of year, and all the season's fresh opportunities to gather with our favorite people.

It's a chance to get out of the house, enjoy the great outdoors, see friends and neighbors, and have people over for memorable times together. From Mother's Day through graduations and Father's Day — as the trees grow fuller and the grass becomes greener — rebirth and rejuvenation blooms all around us. Let's celebrate!

It's our company's vision to be there in times of Joy, Comfort and Love, which means our products are designed to Lift the Spirit throughout the spring and the other many occasions we spend together throughout the year.

In the pages that follow, you'll not only find ways to enhance your season, you'll learn what Spring means to DEMDACO artists, including ways that they refresh their creativity and how they become inspired. We're fortunate to work with such a talented and insightful collective!

Enjoy the Season...

DEAN CROUSER

Dean Crouser's distinctive collection of accent décor brings a little natural beauty to any gathering. Pieces in his collection include unique keepsakes such as vases, mugs, and serveware featuring vibrant watercolor works of nature, equine, floral and songbird motifs. When it comes to painting, Dean strives to say the most with the least, keeping his watercolor work fast and spontaneous. His goal is to capture the beauty and simplicity of a scene.

“I do a lot of fishing in Oregon and my son Sam and I will soon begin fly fishing on the Deschutes River. After being cooped up inside for much of the winter and early spring, these outings are refreshing and much needed. We will observe deer, chipmunks, porcupines, heron, wild turkey, Canada geese, kingfisher, and osprey. Countless paintings I created were drawn from experiences on these fishing outings. I will bring a good camera equipped with a telephoto lens most of the time. It all plays a key role in finding the inspiration for my paintings. As I have said before, inspiration is everywhere — you just have to look.”

artist

First inspired by her son putting pebbles in her pocket at the beach, Sharon Nowlan's artwork is reflective of the beautiful land and seascapes of Nova Scotia where she grew up drawing, painting and creating in a variety of media. The Sharon Nowlan Collection transforms a mix of composite pebbles and other materials inspired by nature into uplifting designs that celebrate meaningful relationships and special places.

“There is definitely something about spring that inspires. Maybe it's the longer, brighter, sunny days. Everything just seems a bit lighter, brighter and happy. Designs with flowers and happy spring colors start popping up in studio just as they start popping up in my yard.”

When I head to the beach early in spring, which I do, I'm never certain that it will be clear or habitable enough to even pick any pebbles. But the first time I climb over the sand dune and see the sand with the tiny pebbles scattered about, it's always a very welcome sight.”

artist

Tracy Pesche's passion for the arts is inherited from her parents, who own a fine art gallery. Today, she finds herself raising her own family and creating whimsical pieces out of wood and metal. Tracy's bright colors and style appeal to all ages, and she hopes her work puts a smile on others' faces and brightens their walls.

“I live in Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. The winters here are cold and long, so the thought that spring is coming gets me through February. Next, I watch for a vibrant yellow bush, the Forsythia, to start blooming. They won't last long, but they offer a wonderful pop of color. Spring is like a firework show and every day you can look for the next bit of excitement. Spring is the time when everything comes back alive and the nature is amazing.

Spring inspires me to make art! As a lover of color and nature, a lot of my subjects have been related to the outdoors, suns, birds, flowers etc. As you can tell from my artwork, I love color!”

Susan Lordi's artistic process is rather intuitive; she "sketches" in clay as she conceives, sculpts and carves the original of each Willow Tree piece, always with a focus on gesture that speaks to the universal.

By stripping down the essence of emotion to pure form, she opens the interpretation of each piece to the giver and receiver. This one-of-a-kind approach to product creation makes her pieces truly individual... her hand, and her unique perspective, is evident in each sculpture.

"I love this time of year! I like to walk in the tangles of my garden and discover little jewels that pop up or volunteer through the weeds. Usually not planted or cultivated, these colorful surprises never fail to make me smile. I have always loved plants, gardening, digging in the dirt—working with the same design elements of texture, color, scale, and value that I work with in any medium, whether it's textiles, sculpting a Willow Tree piece, whatever. To me, it's creating with a medium, but the exciting thing is the medium is alive and it changes throughout the growing season."

Messenger Coffee

Lifts the Spirit in Kansas City

At DEMDACO, our mission is to strive to Lift the Spirit in consumers, in each other, and in our communities. We're always looking for other companies and organizations who share a similar view of business. Messenger Coffee Company in Kansas City is one of those companies. Their whole approach to business, coffee in particular, is to shine a light and lift up those involved in the process of bringing quality coffee to customers. They don't believe they're responsible for the quality of their coffee; it's their responsibility to deliver the quality. Or rather, they're the Messenger who delivers the quality.

Here's how they explain their role:

The production of great coffee starts long before it gets into our hands. Our approach to sourcing is a part of the core philosophy of our company. We search for different varieties and processing techniques that impact the coffee's flavor and allow these natural variables to change the cup profile. This gives our customers a complete look into the incredible flavors that are, by nature, coffee.

We're grateful for companies like Messenger who understand the responsibility of business goes beyond a financial bottom line; that business is first and foremost a human endeavor. Messenger works to build a business around that human connection, with a focus on fair trade and sustainability in their sourcing practices.

MESSENGER

DEMDACO®

That's why we're partnering with Messenger to serve coffee in our first DEMDACO store at the Legends Outlet in Kansas City, Kansas. The store will be an ever-changing, retail lab environment meant to explore how consumers experience our brand. We'll feature local makers and artists, as well as ways to give back to local communities. If you happen to be in the Kansas City area, please stop by and enjoy a cup of Messenger Coffee.

"After more than 20 years of selling to gift shops all over the country, we're excited to open our first DEMDACO-branded store here in our hometown at the Legends," DEMDACO

President Lance Hart said. "This provides a new opportunity to better understand which products and concepts resonate with consumers from a wide region and share what we learn with our network of retail partners."

Johannah Miller, the artist behind the Crossroads collection, began creating art as a child, when she received a simple piece of paper and a pen from her mother, also an artist. She studied ballet and music, but decided to focus on illustration and design, further developing an interest in ceramics and textiles and how to combine different mediums. Johannah strives to make lasting objects that help people feel joy. That joy can be because it is something they find functional day in and day out, because it was a gift, or because they find it beautiful.

“I think the most inspiring thing about this season is spring cleaning. I love interiors and spaces and everything being in its proper place. Having a tidy space makes me feel calm and collected, like my mind is ready to focus on creating. After a few days of doing this I start looking around the house for my next new project that gets me excited.”

The Joy is in the Journey

The Your Journey Bag is hand-stitched in India from distinctive fabrics chosen to represent different phases of life — bright and bold, or soft and muted. You may find variations in the same color family on the bag you receive. This is intentional to remind us we are not all cut from the same cloth.

The Remembrance Comfort Box combines a Giving Shawl — like receiving a hug from someone who loves you — and the Remembrance angel from Willow Tree®. Artist Susan Lordi sculpted Remembrance as "a piece that's all about memories. The symbols carved on her dress recall memories that appeal to the senses... little personal reminders that we hold safe within us, connecting us to those we love."
