STAND OUT FROM THE CROWD

Why use a recruiter? — In a word: time. As in, don’t waste yours. By working with Unlimited MedSearch, you eliminate the need to spend your time searching for job postings, company contact information and application requirements. We have immediate knowledge of hundreds of job openings and we know exactly how each company wants to receive your information and your resume.

Leap over the HR pile. — When you mail a resume for consideration, your chances for securing the job rest on the whims of overburdened Human Resources employees. HR departments receive hundreds, if not thousands, of resumes for every position advertised — and your resume will land somewhere in that pile, waiting until the busy HR staff has the time to sort and distribute it to the appropriate hiring manager. Unlimited MedSearch, on the other hand, has long-term relationships with direct hiring managers and can market you directly to the appropriate manager within the company. Plus, we know all about the jobs that never even get advertised.

Benefit from honest feedback and savvy spin control. — When you go on an interview, we hear about it. And while hiring managers are generally reluctant to give honest feedback directly to a job candidate, we get the real lowdown on how it went. If you made a faux pas, we can fix it. If something went alarmingly wrong, we can get you better prepared for the next interview. But, bottom line, we find out what they won’t tell you. And we put that information to work to get you the best job possible.

Reap the rewards of inside information.

We get paid by the company, not the candidate. And the organizations we work with are financially stable, so you won’t be out of a job two weeks after you move cross-country to take it. We focus on the stable, paying jobs and we keep
