SPOT: Needing Volunteers, Overnight Women's Shelter To Host Info Session Monday

INTRO: An overnight Springfield shelter is looking for volunteers to help serve women facing homelessness. KSMU's Reginald Lee Jr. has details.

ON PUBLIC: 061821SafeToSleepSPOT

RT: 30 seconds

The Safe to Sleep shelter provides safety and an overnight cot to women experiencing homelessness or domestic violence. The organization is hosting an informational event this evening (on Monday, June 21) from 7-8:30 P.M. where men and women over the age of 18 can learn more about volunteering there.

Masks will be required. Volunteers at Safe to Sleep aren't required to stay awake all night; each person gets a four-hour sleep break, according to organizers. For KSMU News, I'm Reginald Lee Jr.
