BLOODSHOT

Bobby Bare Jr. is one of those rare artists who makes music not because he wants to, but because he just has to. The stubborn little Bare is back with 11 tracks recorded in 11 hours with 11 people. Scattered among his typical Music City collaborators are members of My Morning Jacket, Clem Snide, and Lambchop. And while the tunes sometimes stray into subtle acoustics, harmonicas and drawn-out steel guitar, the guitar pedals are always just one step away from loud boogie-woogie rock. DAN FRAZIER
