Electra Medical Supply Honors Community

ELECTRA, TX – While hospital workers are being called “healthcare heroes” around the world due to the current pandemic, staff at Electra Medical Supply, a division of Electra Hospital District, sought to highlight those community heroes who work more behind the scenes these days.

Electra Medical Supply manager, Tina Price, along with her staff, Breanne Staley and Jennifer Wendell, arranged a picture to be taken and edited featuring those individuals classified as essential who work on the front lines in their own right. They wanted to honor their heroic sacrifices for their families and communities during the pandemic as well as every day, Price said. Price then sent the photo to Katie McKinley, director of communications at EHD, to be published publicly.

“We appreciate our local heroes so much, especially during this crazy time,” she said. “We want them to know they are just as essential to us as our doctors and nurses. We need them know we care.”

Professions included in this photo are farmers, police officers, firefighters, electricians, mechanics, welders, and construction, oilfield, and storefront workers.

Electra Medical Supply and EHD would like to extend a thank you to these individuals for all they do for the Electra community and EHD. The hospital workers dubbed “healthcare heroes” could not do what they do without your help and sacrifice each day.

Electra Hospital District wants to be viewed as the best in the communities it serves—whether through the delivery of healthcare needs, as an employer, or as a community member. Holding itself to the highest standards of quality in all it provides, Electra Hospital District encourages employees to be active at the community level and to strive to be examples of service not only to patients, but also to surrounding communities. When it comes to your healthcare needs, Electra Hospital District is your community resource for top-quality care. For more information, please visit www.electrahospital.com.
