1 CAMILA CABELLO I know this is a hot take, but I absolutely adore Camila Cabello's discography. I definitely indulge in her featured tracks when they come on the radio, but I personally have and love both of her albums, Camila and Romance. As a die-hard 5 Seconds of Summer fan, Cabello's old band Fifth Harmony's fanbase was a fierce rival of 5SOS's, so I stayed away from her until she left the band in 2016. I really started listening to the Cuban-American singer my freshman year here at Ohio University and found her to be a bangin' artist to hot girl walk to class to. While some cannot get past her "nasally" sound, my focus is on the gorgeous intonation, sick beats, and addicting lyrics I find her songs to have. Her latest single, "Don't Go Yet", is a flamenco lover's dream and beautifully sets up her much-awaited third album, Familia, that I cannot wait for. I also love her relationship with Shawn Mendes; just two attractive young people loving up on each other and being domestic together. What is not to love? Haters gonna hate, but no one can talk me out of appreciating Cabello's sound.
