

Chelsea Gohd

Science Communicator

www.chelseagohd.com // chelseagohd@gmail.com // @chelsea_gohd

PROFILE

A passionate science communicator, I create written content and videos to make the complexities of the universe accessible, tangible and exciting for an everyday audience.

EXPERIENCE

Space.com, New York - Staff Writer

JULY 2019 - PRESENT

- Research, write and edit articles about emerging science and the evolving space sector
- Script, host and film science video content exploring space and science

Intern

MAY 2018 - SEPT 2019

- Pitch and write articles about new science discoveries in the space sector

Freelance Science Writer/Presenter

2013 - PRESENT

Published in: Scientific American, Discover Magazine, Space.com, Astronomy Magazine, Live Science, Jungles in Paris, Futurism, Outer Places, AMNH Microbe Mondays blog

- Pitch, research, write and edit science articles and content for online and print publications
- Research, script, host and film science video content

American Museum of Natural History, New York - Exhibitions Assistant/Teaching Assistant

JULY 2015 - AUG 2016

- Conduct short-form lectures for the public AMNH audience, which is made up of up to 5 million diverse patrons per year, as part of the "Spiders Alive!" and "The Secret World Inside You" exhibits
- Support a microbiology master class as a teaching assistant

Exhibit Writer

JUNE 2019 - AUG 2019

- Create text for a new, interactive installation in the Hall of Meteorites

EDUCATION

Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, New Brunswick

The School of Environmental and Biological Science - Bachelor of Science

SEPT 2010 - MAY 2014

Major: Public Health // Minor: Biological Sciences

Certificate: Public Health Preparedness

SKILLS

Very proficient with multiple CMS, GSuite, WordPress, Microsoft Word/Excel/PPT/Office. Experience with research, data collection, basic spanish, photo editing software, web design.

In my personal life I am a member of the WINS (Women in Natural Sciences) at the AMNH, an independent pop musician and an avid marathon runner.