AN OPEN LETTER TO A MUSIC LOVER

Dear Yang Berhormat Puan Nurul Izzah Anwar,

We wanted to write this letter to remind ourselves why we need to continue to support our country's music scene - and we thank you for championing it.

Music can mean different things to different people but there is one thing that will always remain the same – music has always been able to get us through tough times and is what brings people together; regardless of race, religion or background.

Since 2010, Rockaway has been a part of various rock concerts, festivals, and gigs. We know that our music scene is very much alive and kicking, and we have so much local talent screaming for a platform to showcase their skills, capabilities, and passions.

One case in point; your 'promise is a promise' tweet of bringing Radiohead to Malaysia garnered thousands of retweets, comments, and likes. This in itself shows us that Malaysian music fans agree with your vision and they too want to see it become a reality.

We believe the public are hungry for a showcase of talent and the sharing of similar passions amongst music lovers. To get this, your support is needed and is appreciated far more than you know, similar to how we made history on 9th May 2018; together and hand in hand.

If this letter speaks to you, act on it. Support our music industry and show how much you appreciate the musicians you love.

We're here to help you rock Radiohead for Malaysia. All you have to do is ask 🙌

"Majulah muzik untuk negara!"

Sincerely,

Rockaway Festival

IT'S THE SHIP - The Cruise Music Festival You Will Regret Missing

Imagine four days and three nights of non-stop partying to the best music acts around the world; that's what IT'S THE SHIP, Asia's Largest Cruise Festival At Sea has continued to deliver to thousands of its shipmates for the past 4 years.

The epic shipcation is about to embark on its fifth year as it ventures out to the high seas with 3 new expeditions in Asia and the main voyage in Singapore. What some may consider as a once-in-a-lifetime experience, others consider as an annual milestone event. Last year's cruise liner brought 4,000 festival goers from Singapore to the scenic island of Phuket and back, where shipmates got the chance to rub shoulders with celebrity DJs including Krewella, Yellow Claw, Coone, and other international and regional artists.

IT'S THE SHIP has continuously upped the ante each year with its variety of music genres, activities, and routes. The 2016 sailing itself was a rare one; instead of giving shipmates a typical beach party, a private street carnival was arranged along the tourist-favourite, Upper Penang Road in Penang, Malaysia.

"2018 is about to be the biggest year for us. It has been a yearly festival for the past four years, but this year, we will be venturing into foreign waters. It's great that we now have the opportunity to share our festival with those that haven't had the chance to come onboard. Our mission is to make each voyage unforgettable and different than the last, so much so that each shipmate would always want to come back for more" Cyril Francis, the Managing Director of IT'S THE SHIP said.

It is quite unheard of for a music festival to allow its audience to mingle with the artists and performers. The fact is, when shipmates are onboard and out at sea with limited connectivity, they get the chance to fully immerse themselves in the music and meet new friends with similar passions. In some way or another, IT'S THE SHIP acts as an unusual yet comforting home away from home for the shipmates.

A long time ago, in a galaxy far, far away...

3 years to be exact, I awoke to an exciting dream about creating the LighterSaber. The idea of having a replica of one of pop culture's most iconic gadgets would be a dream come true. Especially if it was in the form of one of life's most mundane items... a lighter. That's when the thought came to me. Why not create something that is useful, not only to me, but to millions of people across the galaxy?

With its convenient size and powerful flame, the LighterSaber is an iconic gadget that will get you through the dark and in your times of need. Fueled by butane, the only true hyperdrive fuel available in our galaxy for commercial application, the LighterSaber is the perfect accessory for lighting young Padawan's birthday candles or burning through Trade Federation blast doors.

by Nadia M / 99406 reads

Just like baby's first nappy change and nail trim, the first bath is one of the most intense experiences any parent faces at the beginning of their parenting journey. It can be daunting, scary, and – as many parents would agree – eventful, but it is still extremely important as it will set the tone for your child's future bathtime routine.

Not only small and fragile, babies can also be quite slippery when wet, making bathtime even trickier than it already is. It's time to leave your worries at the bathroom door as we have found a few ways to make this wet task more fun for both you and baby.

Boost Your Immune System with These 5 Recipes

By Cosmic Cookware

During these unprecedented times – you know, with a pandemic raging and cases on the rise – it's more important than ever that we keep our bodies and minds in tip-top shape. A healthy immune system not only helps you keep on track with daily tasks, but also helps ward off colds, flu, and the like when they're out and about.

So how can you start supporting your immune system with what you cook in your non-stick pan, skillet pan, saucepan, or whichever pot or pan that tickles your fancy?

It's a well-known belief that consuming more whole foods such as fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and lean protein is the easiest way to keep your immunity going strong while foods rich in probiotics (kimchi, yoghurt, tempeh, kombucha, sourdough – we're looking at you!) help to improve your gut health. It's been proven time and time again that prebiotic-rich food such as garlic, onions, leeks, asparagus, bananas, and oats, and polyphenol-rich food like nuts, berries, herbs, and spices are contributing factors to great health (plus they've also been proven to treat your skin goood).

Even though the saying "you are what you eat" may be true in some cases, there are other ways to boost your immune system other than by just consuming nutritious food. Staying hydrated, exercising daily (even if just a few minutes), and making sure you're getting plenty of ZZZs are three other ways to keep your body and mind healthy and working their best.

But don't worry, that's a blog post for another day. Time to get back to the FOOD. Here's our list of 5 delicious, immune-boosting recipes to promote a healthy immune system while keeping you ready to take on the world!
