Nomzamo Mbatha is a South African accountant, actress and television personality best known as one of the three finalists in the 2012 MTV Base VJ Search. She landed her first acting role in the Mzansi Magic telenovela IsiBaya, in 2013.

Mbatha was born in KwaMashu, north of Durban in KZN. She is known among her friends for being full of life, with tons of personality, a big heart and the gift of the gab. While still at school she used to be invited to speak at other schools around Durban and was subsequently invited to become Madam Speaker in the KZN Youth Parliament.

Nomzamo finds inspiration in people, music and her family and is passionate about music and entertainment. A huge fan, of Beyoncé Nomzamo loves to listen to pretty much every genre of music but especially reggae, RnB, kwaito and gospel.

In 2015 she had a starring role as Khwezi, an orphan from Kwa-Zulu-Natal who was adopted by her uncle as a teenager and is the potential third wife in a polygamous marriage, in the e.tv drama series.

However, she is slaying recently. She will be lighting up screens as the co-host of the BET International Awards ceremony in Los Angeles, Nomzamo once again dazzled American audiences when she hosted the prestigious Essence Music Festival this past weekend.

The festival, held in New Orleans, Louisiana, is one of the world's leading lifestyle events and draws thousands of fans each year. It featured performances by US megastars Diana Ross, Mary J. Blige, Chance The Rapper, Solange and John Legend.

"I am honoured to represent South Africa at the event", she said with a smile in her face; demonstrating excitement and joy.

"I am excited to not only be experiencing the Essence Music Festival in its home ground, New Orleans, but also to be working at this event with such a rich culture. Like always, I will be giving it a special African flair," she added, before the event.

Besides her superb presenting skills, Nomzamo's dress sense has also won over fashion critics across the world, making it onto the best-dressed list of several well-known fashion critics for her African-inspired BET outfit.

UK publication Daily Mail said that the star "made a statement" with her dress, while US fashion and lifestyle blog 21ninety said that she "stunned" audiences with her look.

African at heart and wants the While Nomzamo may be bowling international fans and critics over, she is still proudly South world to see more of Africa's melting pot of cultures.

Speaking to STYLE magazine about her future plans, Nomzamo said that instead of moving to America, she hoped to bring American audiences to South Africa. [CONTINUE...]

“We have so much talent in South Africa, and Africa. It is time that we expose that to the world and bring them into our circle and show them what we have,” she said.

Nomzamo Mbatha is busy flying the South African flag high on the 2017 BET Awards weekend in Los Angeles, USA. The actress co-hosted the BET Awards International presentation on Saturday, alongside the American model Eva Marcille, who some of you may remember from ‘America’s Next Top Model’.

South Africa is best at grooming their best. she’s following the foot of international author - Chimamanda.

AKA, Nasty C, and Babes Wodumo were all nominated in the category, but lost out to Nigerian superstar Wizkid. Songstress Amanda Black also didn’t win in her category. She was beaten by Tanzanian artist Ray Vanny, who walked away with the ‘Viewers’ Choice: Best International’ award.

But “Team South Africa” didn’t go home empty handed. SA music icon Yvonne Chaka Chaka received the ‘Global Good Award’ for her efforts as an humanitarian.

The ceremony took place one day before the live show on Sunday, with awards being dished out in categories such as ‘Best International Act: Africa’. Parts of the the presentation are expected to be included in the main event.

Since day one in Isibaya Nomzamo Mbatha best known as Thandeka in the series was the love of South Africa through her bubbly and feisty personality not only in Manzi but throughout the whole wide world. She the best at what she does. Go girl.

Nomzamo’s presenting gig is also a major win for Mzansi, and hopefully next year we will have one of our local stars making it to the main event!
