Websites are like a canvas. You have complete freedom to design them the way you want. But, unlike an actual painting, not all people can view your site the way you want them to. The internet is huge and old, and devices are getting smaller and more compact. Now you have to adapt your painting for a smaller canvas without losing its beauty. Let us dive into the deep ocean of the internet and see how websites have evolved over time. Early Days of the Internet Remember the early days of inter

Jennifer, daughter of a single mother after claiming the position of the best journalist in india sat down for a interview. During this interview she is confronted with reasons to what does she owe her success. Throughout conversation we get to know that it is just not her love for the profession but her past, her fears and much more than that which lead to India giving birth to such a powerful journalist.
