Our Delaware Lawyers Will Define Who You Can Sue for Medical Malpractice

You can seek financial compensation from a physician who did not provide you with treatment that met the acceptable standard of care. Physicians, though, are not the only medical professionals who can be held accountable. The at-fault parties in a medical malpractice claim could also include:

- Nurses
- Dentists
- Technicians
- Anesthesiologists
- Nurse practitioners
- Physician assistants

Healthcare facilities can also be liable for medical malpractice, including hospitals, labs, rehab centers, and nursing homes. If applicable, we will also pursue compensation from medical equipment manufacturers.

Economic damages we demand for you can include:

- Current and future medical bills

Non-economic damages we demand for you can include:

- Temporary or permanent disability

We Fight Hard to Negotiate the Best Possible Settlement for You and Your Family

Resolving your case with a settlement—the most likely outcome—can be a complicated, multi-step process. We know a speedy settlement offer can be tempting, but we wait for all the costs associated with your loss to become apparent. Once all your expenses and losses are accounted for, we will:

- Submit a comprehensive settlement offer
- Evaluate any offers the insurer makes
- Make appropriate counteroffers

You, too, play a significant role in the settlement process since the final decision to accept or reject each offer is yours to make. We will guide you toward the best outcome for you and work hard to maximize your financial recovery.
