

In the Universe

I'll pretend that seeing you doesn't hurt me
And we'll go get coffee in a shop
And I'll wish things were a little different
And you'll tell me about your plans after school

I'll pretend that I don't mind hearing about him
As we sit down at the table
And even though we're in a room full of strangers
You're the one making me anxious

I'll trust in the universe baby
As I try not to fake a smile
But I don't even know how to be happy
When we haven't spoken in awhile

I'll pretend that I can't see the demons
Floating around both our heads
And as we walk out to the parking lot
Maybe I'll think of ways to make you stay

I'll pretend dropping you off isn't a memory
And that I don't want to forget
'Cause truth is darling if you didn't know me
Maybe we'd both know happier days instead

I'll trust in the universe baby
As I try not to cry on the way home
But I don't even know how to be lonely
When I'm so used to being alone
