

The G Suite is gaining popularity over Microsoft Office in the workplace

The business world is changing very fast, so every business needs to improvise with the changes and trends. So, having an integrated cloud-based software solution is very important. There are two primary options in the market, G Suite and Microsoft Office. And when it comes to gaining popularity, G Suite is putting MS Office to shame.

- G Suite is a very secured cloud-based collaboration and productivity software solution that is designed by Google AI to cater every kind of business.
- G Suite provides everything a business requires to get its projects run through, so it offers everything a business needs.
- G Suite is very sleek and snappy. So multitasking is much more fun here.
- It is easier to integrate between apps than that of fancy MS office apps.
- G Suite continually gets new features and updates. That is why they have 2 billion active users now.
- G Suite is built on Google's world-leading cloud infrastructure, so there's no way to be skeptical about it when it comes to safety.
- Skype is used for communication in MS office, and it needs Skype credit to call, whereas G Suite offers Hangout, which is absolutely free anywhere in the world.
- Also, G Suite makes multitasking much more fun and engaging. Like working on the same document or project simultaneously, so it's easier to get connected.
- MS Office gives a big fat 1 TB of storage, but G Suite provides unlimited storage.
- Most impressively, even though G Suite offers so many features, it is much more affordable than Microsoft Office.

MS office has been on the market for long, but G Suite is new to the game, yet G suite is doing better than MS Office in so many aspects. It offers all the excellent tools that business needs. It's always motivating new entrepreneurs and enterprise owners to move forward. G Suite ensures the most effective and efficient way of working together, and this is what every business needs.
