What teachers want: skilled readers.

What students want: fun!

With Foundations A-Z, you can have both. Research indicates that there's a positive correlation between student motivation and reading achievement.

How Foundations A-Z Can Help:

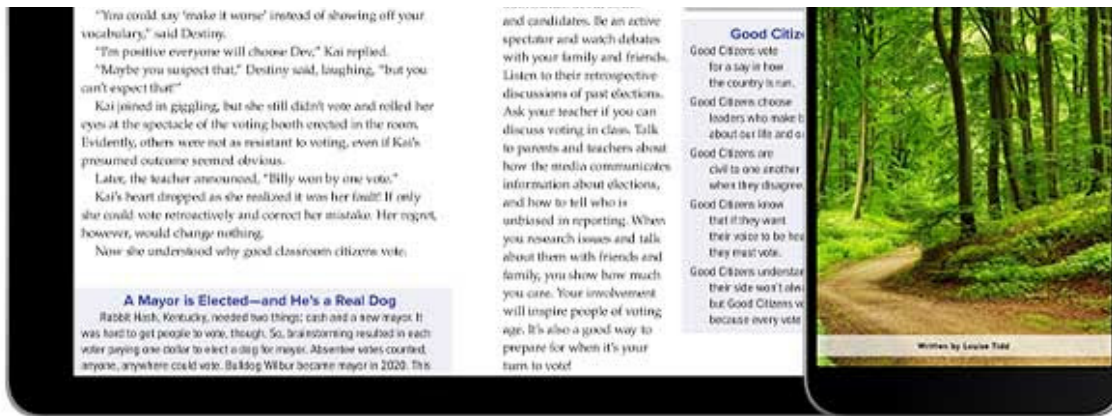

Fun Characters

Students review concepts, complete quests, and earn rewards with engaging space characters by their side.

Motivating Texts

Spark student interest with compelling fiction and nonfiction decodable books and word study passages that they will want to read.

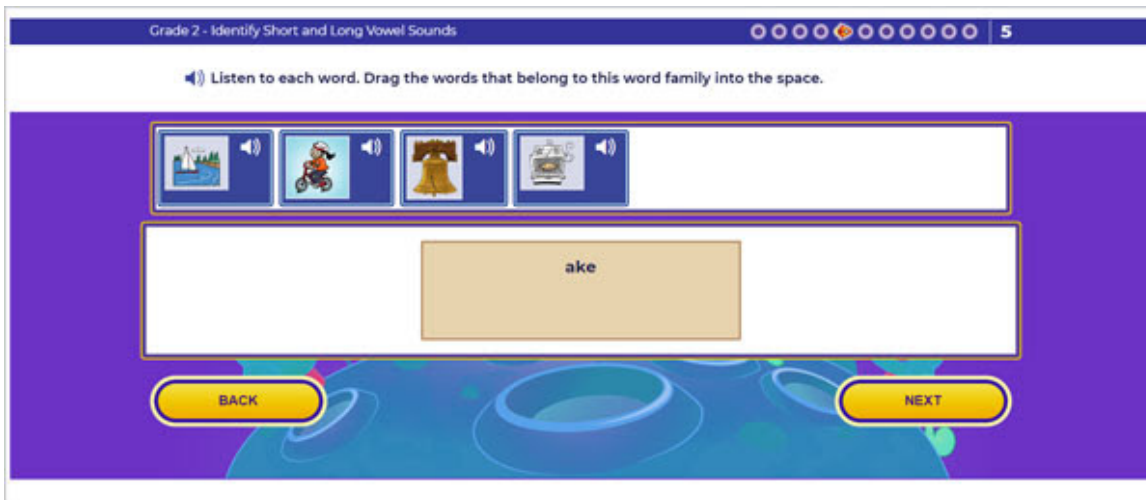

Content That “Ages Up”

Keep the interest of older students with developmentally-appropriate activities.

Interactive, Multisensory Practice

Students are able to apply their skills, receive custom, on-the-spot feedback, and reinforce foundational skills while having fun.

Confidence-Building Approach

Skills are taught first by teachers (“I Do”), then practiced as a group (“We Do”), then independently (“You Do”), instilling confidence in students with limited frustration.
