Summary:

The Costa Smeralda in northeastern Sardinia is Italy's own summer paradise, home to some of Europe's most breathtaking beaches – powder-white sands lapped by crystal-clear waters in shades of turquoise and aquamarine. Here you'll find glamorous Porto Cervo, the region's vibrant heart, lined with luxury yachts and high-end boutiques.

Just a short drive inland lies the family-run Aldiola Country Resort, a charmingly rustic retreat surrounded by cork oaks and flowering shrubs, with sweeping views over Lake Liscia. Cool off in the elegant free-form pool and soak up the warm, authentic atmosphere. There's also an outdoor fitness area and the option to book wellness treatments. Be sure to sample the estate's own locally produced wine from the resort vineyard.

The resort is the perfect base for exploring the island's countless beaches, including Cannigione's pink-hued sands, as well as nearby archaeological sites dotted with ancient olive trees, all within easy reach of lively Porto Cervo.
