Trainers by Prada

It's happened: we are fully settled into the new year.

The hibernation period is over and it's time to get back into the swing of things. No excuses.

But if you do need some encouragement (you're only human after all) these Prada trainers are sure to put a spring back in your step. Crafted from nylon and suede with a rubber sole, they give a nod to the Seventies vintage running trainer. So, this season you can forget the ugly trainer trend and step foot into these super lightweight sneakers. The only problem is what colour to choose.

Available in a rainbow of shades these trainers will complement any wardrobe (or fancy gym kit).
