Today's footwear trends are about looking as cool as you feel comfortable. From futuristic runners to chunky "dad" platforms and slick tennis shoes, trainers dominate the runways and Autumn/Winter 2020 was no exception. Case in point: the new NS1 high-tops from Dolce & Gabbana. Whether you're full sneakerhead or a part-time footwear fanatic, chances are you've noticed Dolce & Gabbana's signature style on the streets. But this season, they've had a cosy, autumnal makeover, with contrasting panels with knitted details, technical fabric and crosta leather laced together with the D&G logo for a high-top trainer with Italian craftsmanship. It's Back To The Future meets treasured knitted jumper and it's about to gain you serious street cred as the style statement your winter wardrobe needs.
