Why Our Customers Choose Us

Our owner, Brandon Bullard, and his wife, Miranda, operate Bullard Roofing together. Our family business always focuses on our deep, lasting passion for providing quality roofing services to our community.

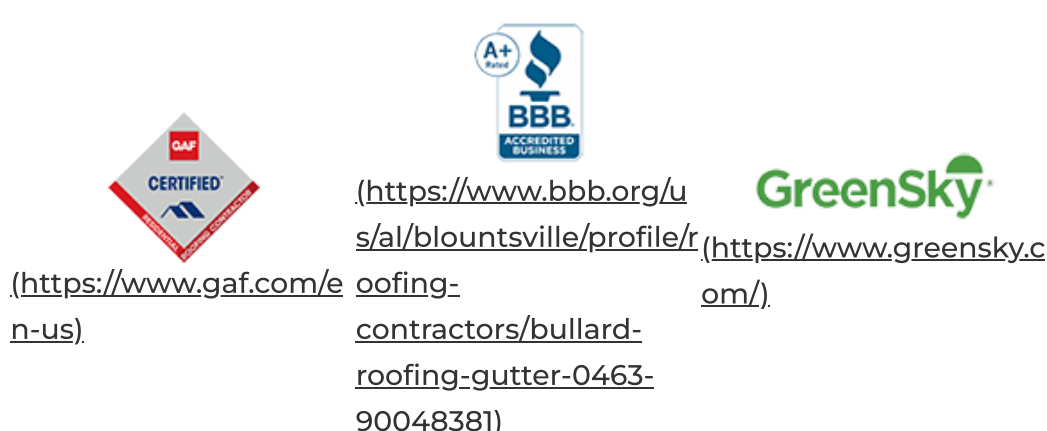

When Brandon was young, he learned the ins and outs of roofing from his father and grandfather. Born into the family business, he always understood the importance of quality workmanship and of taking pride in his work. These principles consistently guide him to provide the best possible work as a roofing contractor, from roof inspections and repairs to total roof replacements and new roof installation.

About Us

Since 1955, the professional roofing contractors at Bullard Roofing have provided quality roofing services to homeowners throughout Blount, Cullman and Marshall County communities.

My name is Brandon Bullard, and I am a third-generation roofer. Roofing is literally in my blood! My grandfather roofed his entire adult life and raised a family of nine children — and, at some point, they all helped him roof. My father started Bullard Roofing in 1955, right out of the military. He graduated high school, served two years in the Army, did a one-year tour in Vietnam, came home and started doing what he knew best.

I went to work with my father when I was young, starting early in the day and working until dark. A roofer's hours are long, and it took me a while to adjust to the cold of roofing in the winter and the heat of roofing in the summer. I vowed then that I would never be a roofer, but somehow it grew on me! I came to realize that I enjoyed being my own boss and working with the people in my community. Roofing is something that I could not deny. Yes, I now agree that it was in my blood.
