

TINDER VS BUMBLE

WHEN IT COMES TO ONLINE DATING, SOME FIND THEIR SOUL MATES, WHILE OTHERS ARE LEFT TO MUDDLE THROUGH THE TRASH (MORE SO THE LATTER). TO MAKE THINGS EASIER, WE REVIEW THE TOP TWO DATING APPS

18

TINDER

Tinder is the OG dating app. It was created in 2012 and has more than 55 million users making it the most popular dating app in the world. Even though it's received a lot of backlash for being an app just for hook-ups, it still remains consistent. If you're thinking about joining, consider these pros and cons.

PROS:

It's easy to use

You swipe left if you don't like the person and right if you do.

If both people swipe right, it's a match (yay!), and you can start talking to each other. You can also swipe up, which is considered a Superlike, but you only get one of these per day.

Swipe whenever and wherever

It's true! As long as there's WiFi or stable internet connection – and as long as you haven't gone through your one hundred swipes per day in your age range and location.

Meet new people

Tinder is a good way to meet people that you may have never crossed paths with. It likely won't be a friendship to start with, but if it doesn't work out romantically you never know!

CONS:

Decreases your confidence

If you're constantly swiping and don't get as many matches, it may be discouraging. But that's not to say you aren't a catch, you may just have to tweak your profile a bit or maybe use a different app.

It's somewhat superficial

Even though you can have up to six photos and a bio, you're being judged on your first photo, so if someone doesn't like it, they will automatically swipe left. Some people go through the photos and bios if they see potential, but not often.

You can lose potential matches accidentally

You might get into such a habit of swiping fast that