

Crazy Sexy Chic

Five ways to sex up your hair and ooze amour: give these amped up hairdos from the runways of Fall/Winter 2014 a head-spinning, hair-flicking whirl

Photography Steve Koh Art Direction Karen Hoo Styling Shantila Lee

Undulating Waves

The look of Blumarine

Undone, bohemian waves with a bit more polish are in, spotted at Blumarine, Burberry Prorsum, Gucci and countless more shows. For the most romantic month of the year, wear it BIG with max volume and height: wrap sections around a curling iron and lift at the roots, leaving the ends free for irregularity, then set the waves with a setting spray like Kérastase's Laque Couture.

Boho Braids

The look of Nanette Lepore

Our second most-loved, dishevelled braid look of the season: gypsy-esque knots going across the forehead and down the right side of the face at Nanette Lepore. Mimic the look by adding shape and volume with Kérastase Mousse Bouffante, curl all over with a large barrel curling iron, then get braiding: part hair into a deep side part and begin braiding on the forehead moving down.

Flying Updos

The look of Michael Kors

Five words to describe the updos-slash-chignons this season that adorned the girls at Michael Kors, Dolce & Gabbana and Diane von Furstenberg: sexy with a devil-may-care cool. Infuse loads of fluffy, undone texture with Percy & Reed Quite Wonderfully Wavy Texturising Spray, tuck in a row of braids into an updo, and pull out front layers to evoke a surfer-girl, wind-blown nonchalance.

Messy Ponies

The look of Rag & Bone Ponytails this season at Stella McCartney and Rag & Bone were a lived-in, ruffled, hot mess, the kind of raked-back, lazy-yet-alluring Saturday morning hair you always wished to wake up in. It's a mess at the bottom and height on top: apply Alterna Root Blast to the roots and tease it to the max, fluff a mattifying powder on the ends and pull the bottom bits into a low ponytail.

Loose Braids

The look of Emilio Pucci

There were braids galore at Fall 2014: pigtails at Marc Jacobs, cornrows at Alexander McQueen and slack loose braids at Emilio Pucci, our pick for oozing a chic, romantic rock n' roll appeal. Give hair a tousled, rugged texture with Redken's Curvaceous Wave Ahead Mousse, fasten hair at the end into a slack braid with only a handful of plaits, and leave bits at the front to hang loose.

MAKE UP DEIRDRE CHONG
HAIR JEREMY YAP
MODEL KATY ROSE/WUMODELS