The ending of this book is pure poetry. The ashes dropped into the quiet bay. Garnett's words—"They were so in love... it would've been embarrassing if it hadn't been so beautiful." I wept. Because after all the mess and pain, Ben and Jenny found peace. And somehow, in their memory, the narrator and Daani go on living. It reminded me that no life..no matter how chaotic or short, is ever truly lost. They become part of the water. This book will stay with me forever.
