Volunteer for the RECOVER Study

If you have contracted COVID within the past 30 days, you may be selected. A modest payment is offered for participants who are accepted.

Volunteers are needed right now for a multi-year Long COVID study called RECOVER. Anyone in the Bay Area who is at least 18 years old and has been diagnosed with COVID (by a lab or home test) within the past 30 days can apply.

You are invited to apply even if you don't currently have COVID symptoms. The research team needs to hear from people with all types of responses to COVID.

The study will last three to four years and will require a few visits to Bay Area medical clinics (listed below) each year. Participants will be asked to complete questionnaires about their health and also provide blood samples. Some may need to have X-rays or other tests to assess their condition(s) and/or progress.

Some who apply may not be eligible to participate. Those who are accepted for the study will receive a modest payment for their time — approximately $75.00 per office visit.

Office visits will take place at the following locations:

- Daly City — 333 Gellert Boulevard, Daly City 94015
- San Francisco General Hospital — Clinical and Translational Science Institute, 1001 Potrero Ave, San Francisco, CA 94110
- UCSF Parnassus — Crede Ambulatory Care Center, 400 Parnassus Avenue, San Francisco, CA 94102

Researchers want to hear from under-served populations and communities

Anyone can apply to participate in the RECOVER study, but it's especially important to hear from those who have been impacted the most. Blacks/African Americans, Latinos, Pacific Islanders and Native Americans have experienced higher-than-average rates of COVID infections, hospitalizations and deaths.

Researchers want to ensure that study results reflect the experiences of all communities in the Bay Area.

Please share this information with everyone who might qualify for the RECOVER study!

Why the RECOVER study is important

RECOVER stands for Researching COVID to Enhance Recovery.

The National Institutes of Health (NIH) describe Long COVID as an "unseen public health crisis" and has invested $1.21B to address it. The RECOVER study will help all of us learn more about how common Long COVID is and what causes it. The goal is to find better ways to treat and prevent it.

The University of California San Francisco (UCSF) is one of 15 research locations around the country that is conducting this study. Different RECOVER research locations may focus on different aspects of Long COVID as part of this nationwide research.

You can read more about the details and goals of the RECOVER study on the national website at RecoverCOVID.org.
