RUDDER BOWS ARCHERY

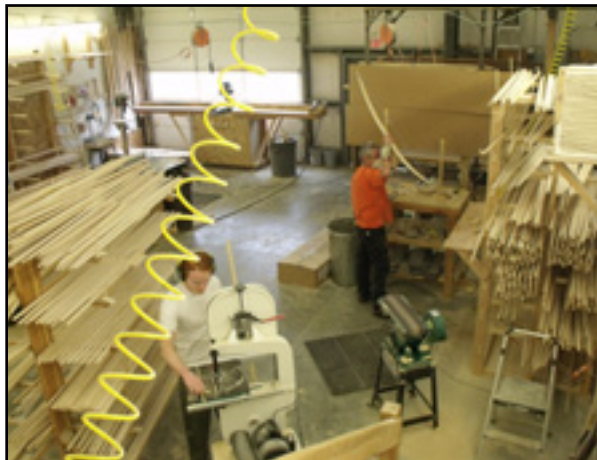

Jim Boswell

Who we are

Jim Boswell founded Rudder Bows Archery in 1992 in the small town of Ellensburg, Washington. His idea for the business sprang forth from a trip to Leavenworth, Washington where Jim saw a decorative bow in the classical-style displayed on a wall. This incident sparked Jim's imagination as he admired the simplicity and history of this ancient tool for protection and hunting. From there, Jim started experimenting with natural wood materials until he found the right wood for the bows he wanted to produce. Originally, the first bows came out of Jim's garage, but today Jim has a small facility where the staff crafts and sells Rudder Bows.

What we are about

The bows that come out of Rudder Bows Archery are produced from all-natural materials and woods. There is no fiberglass involved, and the predominate wood used is hickory - an easily renewable material. Rudder Bows' bowyers are focused on crafting the best product possible for any need - be it recreational, hunting or historical reenactment. Rudder Bows Archery takes pride in the quality of its craftsmanship and goes the extra length to satisfy customers.

What we want to accomplish

Rudder Bows Archery has always been about bringing quality traditional bows and products to their customers. But in the year of 2012, Jim Boswell had a personal experience that made him rethink the purpose of his business. Not only does Jim want to continue the growth of Rudder Bows and producing the quality goods his customers have come to expect, but he wants to leverage his business to help others. Jim was painfully made aware that there are those in need of opportunities to provide for themselves and their dependents. It is Jim's plan to create opportunities for these people - a plan that all of Rudder Bows Archery is behind.
