

Cire Traore, leads with the energy of hard work and beauty. She is a model, brand ambassador, business owner, college student and serves in the US army. Born and raised in Guinea, Conakry and moved to the United States when she was 10, she is making a statement for herself and her culture.

At only 23 years old, she owns a clothing brand Cire's Collection. An inspirational clothing brand that makes customers feel confident and empowered in their magical melanated skin by way of high fashion. Cire uses her platform to inspire other girls that look like her who may have been bullied simply for their skin tone.

"I am a beacon of strength and a role model to others and if I can be an inspiration/role model for at least one little girl, then I have fulfilled my purpose."

Find out more about Cire Traore/

Instagram: @cire.traore, @cirescollections

Twitter: @_ciretraore

YouTube: cire traore

Shop: cirescollections.com

Written by: Amber Jade Weldon