

FINE DINING

The dining sofa from online furniture store sofacompany.com is a modern alternative to traditional dining chairs.

D

ANISH designer Cathrine Rudolph is behind the look of sofacompany.com's

Scandi-inspired Garret dining sofa, a new addition to the Danish brand's extensive furniture collection.

Cathrine, who has a background in textile design, chose to cover the dining sofa in two shades of soft-to-the-touch velour, a dusty pink and a dark grey. The standard sofa features a straight, high backrest with classic button detailing and smoked-oak legs.

Compared with traditional dining chairs, the Garret "provides a more intimate, cocooning dining experience," says sofacompany.com partner Jonathan Sherwin. "It also works beautifully matched with equally well-designed dining chairs to create a modern, eclectic dining area."

Around the corner from the existing sofacompany.com showroom in De Waterkant, Cape Town, is a new 760 m<sup>2</sup> pop-up showroom at 72 Hudson Street where you can view the Garret and more than 150 signature pieces.

za.sofacompany.com

The upright Garret dining sofa from sofacompany.com, which costs R9 299, encourages socialising around the dining table.