

A DAY ON SAFARI

Greet the Sun On an Early Morning Game Drive

Ernest Hemingway said, “I never knew of a morning in Africa when I woke up that I was not happy.” You’ll no doubt agree, as locally sourced coffee, tea, and pre-breakfast vitafunio awaken your senses and the orange glow of dawn over the vast savannah awakens your soul. We embark on an exhilarating sojourn into the surrounding landscape, stealing insider glimpses of the morning rituals performed by the creatures that call this land home. We refuel with a hearty breakfast as we recount the morning’s wonders.

Engage with Your Surroundings

On an Intimate Level Safaris aren’t meant for merely looking. They’re meant for feeling—all five senses firing at once as you immerse your mind, body, and heart into what Louis Leakey called “a living laboratory of evolution.” Experience childlike excitement as you spot a young giraffe grazing, hear a mother elephant trumpeting, or inhale the sweet, woody scent of acacia trees for the first time. All the while, with the aid of insight from your experienced driver guide, you gain a profound appreciation for how the past, present, and future have shaped the natural world and our place in it.

Reflect and Recharge with Feast and Fellowship

The remains of the day bring ample time for additional exploration, be it seeking elusive wildlife, cooling off in a swimming hole, or getting lost in a good book. As afternoon fades into dusk, and the day’s adventures transcend into cherished memories, we connect with each other over a gourmet meal exquisitely prepared and served by our dedicated staff. Sleep brings well-deserved rest in luxurious comfort, and the anticipation of tomorrow conjures blissful dreams.

“The only man I envy is the man who has not yet been to Africa—for he has so much to look forward to.”

– Richard Mullin
