THE GRAND CONNAUGHT ROOMS

In the heart of theatreland and surrounded by the buzz of Covent Garden, The Grand Connaught Rooms and adjacent Hotel Russell combine to make the ideal wedding venue offering a lavish setting with luxury accommodation.

Over the years, the New Connaught Rooms has hosted and entertained the world's leading politicians, royalty, dignitaries and celebrities so your wedding will be taking place in good company. The venue is owned by Principal Hayley Hotels and Conference Venues and has recently undergone a dramatic refurbishment programme transforming it into a world-class venue. The Room's have been sympathetically restored, and the arched high ceilings create a spacious and impressive setting. The Grand Connaught Rooms comprise three main rooms with a separate bar area. These can accommodate 250, 550 and 1000 guests making it the ideal place for a large event. The Hotel Russell, the venue's sister building just 10 minutes away offers a more intimate setting for up to 280 guests and three separate rooms that have been licensed for civil services. Built in 1898 its public areas were designed by the famous architect Charles Fitzroy Doll who designed the public interiors of the Titanic.

Hosting on average one Asian wedding a month both venues are fully accustomed to the requirements of traditional ceremonies and will ensure your vision is delivered exactly how you want it, as Kelly Taylor, the Corporate Sales Manager reassures, 'Our friendly and welcoming staff include a wedding co-ordinator who will make sure every aspect of your Big Day runs smoothly, a head chef who will work with you to create a fully bespoke menu while our in-house lighting specialist can create different moods for each aspect of your day.' With such a unique service provided for so many guests, these two venues really do offer an excellent package – swap between them for your ceremony, reception and accommodation to experience the best of both worlds or opt for the venue that you fall in love with the most.
