 To Our Donors and Friends,

Welcome to our 2018 Gratitude Report 'Our Heart Is in the Home.' This year's report is a little bit different than what you've received from us in previous years. When we set out to make our annual report, we realized we didn't want to simply share a bunch of statistics and accolades. Instead, we wanted to really share our story, what makes our care truly remarkable, and most importantly – what you've made possible.

Charley Shimanski
President & CEO

Brian Himmelman
Chair, 2018 Board of Directors

You are receiving this report because you've given selflessly to our organization. Whether it is was your time, wisdom, talent or resources, we want you to know – you made an impact. Your support makes it possible to ensure that everyone who needs our care receives it.

Relatively speaking, we have a small staff of just under 70 employees, but we serve a vast and sprawling four-county region that includes remote and difficult-to-reach homes. It is our honor to travel to these homes, know the people who built their lives in the mountains that surround us, and provide them with care, love and dignity as they face their greatest challenges. We believe that every mountain resident deserves extraordinary care. Your generosity allows us to set that standard.

On behalf of our staff, our Board and all of those whose lives you change by supporting our mission, thank you for putting your faith in us.

With our deepest gratitude,

Charley Shimanski

We Embraced 1,053 Mountain Residents & Their Families with Compassion, Comfort, Healing, Courage & Hope

They say that numbers tell a story. Throughout this report, you'll find a lot of numbers. Added together, they paint an impactful picture of the care we provide to mountain residents and their loved ones. Because the care we provide is deeply personal, we want to emphasize that behind every number is a person who left our hearts forever changed for the experience of knowing them and having cared for them. In 2018, our team made nearly 18,000 visits in the year – averaging 50 visits per day to:

174
Hospice Patients

"I can't say enough good things about hospice. You were wonderful for my mother. The team from Mount Evans worked together to help us before she died, when she died, now and afterward. We appreciate it."

- Grateful Family of Hospice Patient

Palliative Care Patients

"I believe Mount Evans improved the quality of my life more than I could have imagined. Every person who entered our home made my wife and me feel comfortable and supported, and helped us gain a better understanding of my illness."

- Grateful Palliative Care Patient

743
Home Health Care Patients

"Each person from Mount Evans Home Health Care was very caring and professional. I looked forward to them coming into my home. What a blessing to have such fine health care available in our mountain area."

More than Medical Care

A Prescription of Love

When Mount Evans was founded nearly 40 years ago, our motto was "Mountain people helping mountain people." It's who we were then and it's who we are now. We believe the patients and families who turn to us for help deserve extraordinary care. We serve the most frail, the most vulnerable and the most in need of our medical expertise. Our goal is to support them through their most challenging experiences. When one of our providers makes a visit, their sole concern is how to provide the best possible care to a patient. The last thing on their minds is winning awards, but when you care this deeply about your patients, it's hard for others not to take notice. This is why our local care is nationally recognized for quality.

Kristin Bailey

Mount Evans Nurse

I primarily see hospice patients with a focus on our patients who live in facilities. The end of life is a very emotional time and my goal is to help make it comfortable and peaceful. Families will remember this time for the rest of their lives and I want those memories to be as pleasant as they can be.

We believe that end-of-life care should allow patients and their families to focus on spending precious time with the ones they love. We want their days to be filled with as much love and as little pain as possible. We are committed to meeting the physical, emotional and spiritual needs of people who have been diagnosed with a terminal illness and given a prognosis of six months or less to live.

Your generosity helped Mount Evans to make 6,834 visits to hospice patients in 2018.

Letting Patients Live Life on Their Terms

Mary Noonan

Hospice Social Worker

What touches my heart is spending time with a dying patient when there is no family present. Mount Evans is special because we offer services to people living in the mountains who are often isolated due to illness, but also because of location. They are so grateful to know that there is someone willing to come and help them in their home.

Each patient and their family in our hospice care are cared for by doctors, registered nurses, chaplains, social workers and certified nursing assistants. A dedicated team of volunteers also provide companionship, respite care and complementary therapies.

We often hear that it takes a special person to work in hospice. We believe that's true. Our team is passionate about enhancing the lives of our mountain residents with dignity, compassion and comfort.

Supporting the Mind, Body & Spirit

Here at Mount Evans, we noticed a gap between those who qualified for hospice care because they were close to end-of-life, and those with serious illness who were still actively seeking treatment.

In order to meet the needs of mountain residents diagnosed with cancer, heart disease, kidney failure, stroke, Parkinson's disease and more, we provide pain and symptom management, emotional care and spiritual support in our palliative care program.

Our goal is to help our patients live a meaningful life while they receive treatment for an illness. It is not end-of-life care. Palliative care supports the treatment from their primary care physician or other specialist.

Because of you, our palliative care team made 541
palliative care visits to patients.

Your support helped us provide
11,018 home health visits
through Jefferson, Clear Creek,
Gilpin and Park counties.

Keeping Mountain Residents Happy, Healthy & Home

"I am very pleased with my therapist. She showed me how to build up my strength again. I couldn't have done it without her! Thank you Mount Evans for a wonderful coach!"

– Grateful Patient

Our home health care services allow patients to receive medical care in their own homes as they recover from illnesses and hospitalizations or heal from surgeries.

Every year, we see the demand for our nurses, physical, occupational and speech therapists, certified nursing assistants and social workers increase. Our teams travel hundreds of miles every week, helping mountain residents stay safe, sound and largely sovereign in their own homes.

A Classified Ad that Changed Everything

Richard Cox keeps an envelope in his room. If he didn't offer to show it to you, you likely wouldn't notice it. To the unknowing eye, it simply looks like a well-worn envelope. What makes it special is what it holds – a carefully curated collection of extraordinary moments from a life lived with purpose.

For all of us, life is filled with choices. Some are big choices such as which job to take or whether to move to a new state. Other choices may seem smaller – like which apartment to rent or which puppy to choose from a litter. It's impossible to know what doors a decision will open, or in Richard's case, which hearts. But every choice we make leads us on a path – even the choice to answer a classified ad.

Richard's Early Years

Richard's story begins in Bridgeville, Pennsylvania in 1938 where he was born in the family home. Growing up, his father taught him to hunt.

"When I was a kid and my dad was on strike, we ate wild game and dandelions," explains Richard. "I harvested squirrels, rabbits and pheasants and that's the food we put on the table."

The lessons he learned in the woods of Pennsylvania and his respect for wildlife would remain with Richard throughout his life.

Answering the Call to Serve

After high school, Richard served in the Air Force for six years, first as a jet engine mechanic working on a top-secret missile device and later as a drill instructor.

Richard's experience landed him a job at United Airlines. However, a year later when the union went on strike, Richard decided to become a police officer. He spent close to two decades working undercover unraveling drug rings and murder-for-hire plots. He kept millions of barbiturates and amphetamines off the streets, confiscated kilos of marijuana and cocaine, and chased the largest heroin dealer in the Bay area to Mexico and back twice building a case that would put him behind bars.

Whether it was hunting, serving in the military, or working as a police officer, Richard was a good shot and an excellent advocate. His skills drew the attention of the National Rifle Association (NRA) which offered him a job, first as a lobbyist in California and later as a division lead in Washington, D.C.

Pursuing his Passion

Richard's love of the outdoors and wildlife eventually pulled him back to California where he took up a cause close to his heart: conservation. Tule elk are only found in California and at the time, their numbers were dwindling toward extinction.

"They were down to six elk in the whole state. I captured some of the elk, relocated them and took care of them. They recovered. There are now thousands of Tule elk," said Richard.

To pay for habitat improvements and wildlife management, Richard helped orchestrate the authorization of two elk tags that were auctioned by conservation groups.

"I knew a lot about elk calling at that time – they wanted to know if I would help the elk hunters with elk calls or whatever was necessary."

That marked the beginning of his career as a professional elk guide.

Answering a Classified Ad

Richard moved to Colorado in 2005 to run the Colorado Outfitters Association. He needed a place to live, so he searched the classifieds and found a listing for an apartment Bob and Julie Eaton had on their property in Conifer.

"From the first time we met, it was obvious Richard has a big heart," said Julie Eaton.

This is where Richard's story takes an unusual turn. A lot of people rent apartments, but rarely do they forge a meaningful friendship with their landlord. A friendship that was forged into family by a pair of Labrador retriever puppies.

"Julie liked the runt of the litter. I kept telling her, 'You need to keep the white one in mind'," recalls Richard. "It seemed to me the white one was a good one."

A few weeks later Julie came home with two dogs: the runt she'd fallen in love with and the little white puppy that she gave to Richard as a gift.

"Frostie Sue has been my best girl for a long time. She's my four-legged girlfriend. She's 9-years-old now. Frostie and I lived out in the country when I moved back to Pennsylvania and the only time we separated was when I went to the hospital with all these problems."

A Diagnosis of Cancer

During a visit to the VA hospital, a blood test revealed multiple myeloma, a relatively rare cancer that forms in plasma cells and accumulates in the bone marrow. There is no cure, but the disease can sometimes be slowed through treatments. For Richard, the treatments proved too painful. A family member placed Richard in a nursing home, but for a man who had been fiercely independent all his life, being in a nursing home and away from Frostie was more than he could bear.

"I went back to my own property and I got back with Frostie, but I didn't have a driver's license so I was stranded," said Richard. "We were alone. The only real help I had was from hospice."

That's when Julie and Bob, who had maintained almost daily contact with Richard, made an offer.

"It became obvious he and Frostie could not live alone. We proposed the idea of coming to live with us in Conifer," said Julie. "Our goal is for Richard to be happy, content and comfortable, without worrying about how he is going to take care of Frostie and himself."

It took Richard less than 24 hours to say yes. Bob and Julie traveled to Pennsylvania, helped Richard pack, and moved him back to Colorado. When asked what this meant to him, Richard pauses and with great deliberation says the words, "I'm very grateful."

The return to Colorado signaled the entry of Mount Evans into Richard's life.

Frostie Sue recently had her own cancer diagnosis and treatment. Knowing she will be loved in a forever home is important to Richard.

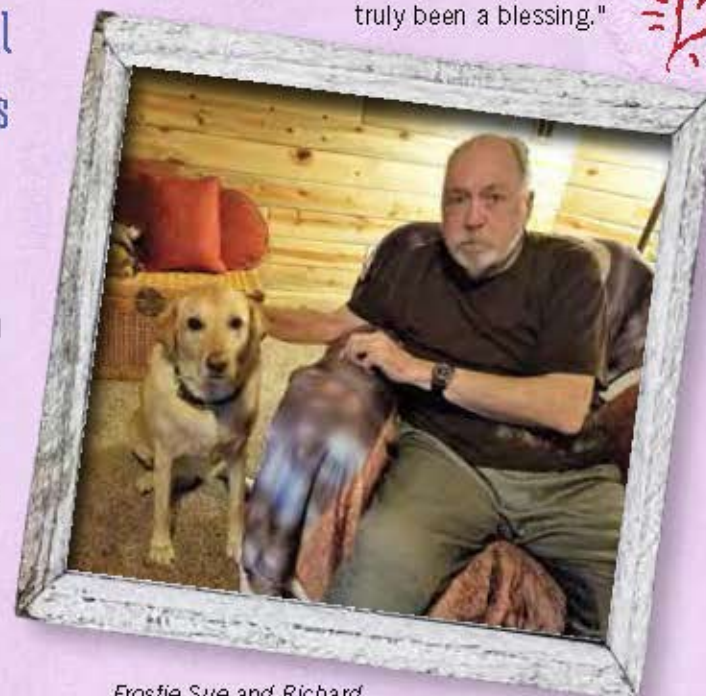

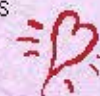

"I have been involved with four hospice organizations – years ago for my father, relatively recently for my mother, for Richard in Pennsylvania, and now Mount Evans hospice," explains Julie. "Without a doubt, Mount Evans is above and beyond the other three. The quality of care, the genuine personal care, the upbeat personalities, and the friends we have made as a result of Mount Evans, have meant a lot."

Richard's team includes a doctor, nurses, social workers, chaplain, certified nursing aides and a volunteer.

"Richard is a character and the best of storytellers. Sitting still does not come easy for him," said Toni Aho, Mount Evans Certified Nursing Assistant. "As I spend time with him, I know that his greatest wish is to be useful to all those he cares about."

Richard has a relentless drive to help people and leave things better than the way he found them. He wants to do for hospice what he spent his life doing for wildlife and conservation – raising money and awareness. So he gave the most important thing he has – his story.

"If I could do something to raise money for hospice that would be a no brainer. In my life, I raised over a million for wildlife and that was important but not as important as what hospice does. What Mount Evans has done for me has truly been a blessing."

Frostie Sue and Richard

Valene was 7-years-old when her father died in a car accident in 1995. She has never forgotten the kindness, compassion and love she received at Camp Comfort in the years following his death. She's one of several former campers who have chosen to give back by volunteering as a Camp Comfort buddy.

Valene Jaapken

Camp Comfort Buddy and Former Camper

When I was a little girl, Camp Comfort changed my life. Being a Camp Comfort buddy changed my life, too. I wasn't expecting the emotions it brought out of me. Hearing them cry in a laugh, and laugh in a cry - you know they're hurting, but they just keep trying. Being a buddy digs right down into your soul. Camp Comfort buddies truly love what they're doing, and they truly love these kids.
