SUSTAINABLE KIBBUTZ GARDEN

The Hershorin Schiff Community Day School is planning to expand its campus to accommodate future growth and year-round programming and activities. Community Day School supports a sustainable space as part of its holistic academic curriculum. The JFSM is requesting $120,000 to help fund a Sustainable Space area of our campus which includes:

- A Holocaust Memorial Garden
- A Sustainable Kibbutz Garden in which area school children will learn about healthy eating, and agricultural technology.
- The Kibbutz Garden will offer a unique look into how early 20th century Jewish pioneers lived and developed thriving communities.
- Providing sustenance in collaboration with All Faiths Food Bank for those in need. The sustainable food garden will enhance our community with fresh, organically grown produce that promotes healthy eating and exposes students to an agricultural education.
- Providing an outdoor space for numerous before and after-school activities that advances student achievement and cultural enrichment during non-school hours. Enrich cultural experience through gardening while making lasting connections with Israeli contemporaries.
- Allow students the opportunity to explore nature and reach a better understanding of science by integrating in-class lessons with outdoor hands-on activities.

This sustainable space aims to provide student with a holistic learning experience while also improving physical health, agricultural production/promotion and quality of education by allowing students to use applied concepts out of the classroom.
