

Unlock your Adventurous Life Starting with Hirikere Lake of Chamarajanagar District

When I first set foot in the luxurious Chamarajanagar District, it suddenly dawned on me that all of my fantasies of a royal life in a natural scenic town would engulf me for the duration of my stay. But this time, my fantasies were my reality. The fact that the place was named after the Mysuru's royal Wodeyar, Chamaraja Wodeyar, who was born here, reassured me the most about the experience I was about to enjoy in the exquisite place.

Not only is the location telling an age-old storey about Kings and Emperors who once used to stroll the same streets. The location invites travellers to take a break and relax while exploring some of the spectacular reservoirs and estates located far from the busy and bustling concrete jungle.

Chamarajanagar was once a part of the larger Mysuru District in Karnataka. In fact, it is the southernmost district in the state.

Neighbouring to the South Indian sister states of Tamil Nadu and Kerala, the district is home for some of the lustrous damp lands. Tourists and voyagers stop by to visit some of the dreamy spots such as the Sri Chamarajeshwara temple in Chamarajanagar, Bigirimana Hills, K Gudi, Male Mahadeshwar Hills, Gundal dam, Suvarnavati dam, Hogenakal Falls, Shivasamudram, Bandipur national park, Gopaldaswamy Hills in Gundlupet and the truly mesmerising Hirikere Lake or Reservoir.

The finest decision I made throughout my time in the district was to make a pit stop at Hirikere Lake. This is one of the few occasions when an online review did not undersell a destination. People strolled around the lake, which had the purest water, and along the road, they carelessly strolled as the sun set. Hirikere Lake offers unparalleled tranquilly which may explain why Karnataka's first historical playwright, Samsa wrote some interesting stories. He was born there.

Thousands of little towns are nestled among the folds of the lovely state of Karnataka. Visiting them is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. Now you know that your adventure can begin at Hirikere Lake in Chamarajanagar!
