Enter the Chat

Throughout every department in aviation, one theme will always be common: communication is king. Effective communication—not only within departments but across them—ensures that everyone on your team is prepared with all the information they need to make holistic and comprehensive decisions.

Engineering easy ways for this communication to take place means you save your people time and effort—and ultimately, you save on your bottom line.

Our solutions help in myriad ways but one thing we made sure to build into some of our most stalwart tools were chat features.

Again, getting the information you need is one thing, but getting that information easily is the difference between a hassle and a head-start

That's why in three of our most integral tools we've included chat features to create seamless communication:

- Crew rules: A chat mechanism is built into the RealTime Web-based Front End, allowing for easy inter-department chats.

- Crewpay: Crews can easily communicate with the payroll department and monitor their check throughout the pay period.
- CrewPortal: CrewChat allows for any department to contact crews and vice versa, minimizing hold times and freeing up crew and scheduling resources.
