Shaq dunks Nike logo

A Tribune wire report
LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles Lakers center and Florida International 161 center Shaquille O'Neal will tape over the Nike logo on his uniform, the team said.

O'Neal, who led the Lakers with 36.1 points and 12.8 rebounds a game last season, recently signed a five-year contract with the Lakers.

The All-Star center is taking the action of his own accord, said Lakers spokesman Dave Fogel.

"As a company, we stand for honoring the commitments that are made by our customers and do not encourage any of our customers to go counter to those if a contract puts them in a situation where they're wearing a uniform with someone else's logo on it," Fogel said.

IRONMAN / Cannon competes in Hawaii to honor memory of his late father

A third-round pick by Tampa Bay out of Williams & Mary, Cannon was the poster boy for dedication and selflessness. A wall of his youth Tampa home to his profession of faith, with awards for community service, courage and hours in the weight room hanging in a spare bedroom. The underlying force behind his work achievement, Jack Cannon insisted on pushing the dusty platters out of a closet one afternoon and began decorating it as he looks on like and foot through lens flares to the small village of Hilo.

Thankfully, there are no railroad tracks on the way. According to Cannon, in January 1995, his father, Jack, left his car in the parking lot of the New Jersey Transit Authority and headed toward the train station. He had stopped to pick up the train schedule in New York City. Cannon's mother, Joan, was waiting for a 2-hourly train. But Jack Cannon never made it home.

Crossing the tracks on route to the station, he was struck by a northbound express train traveling 65 mph and killed instantly. John Cannon sought an outlet to redirect his anger. Although he had a solid religious upbringing in the Catholic church, Cannon began a spiritual journey guided by his father's example. Competition seemed to follow naturally.

Now an investment officer in Tampa, Cannon found peace in triathlon. He started with the Gasparilla Triathlon Club last year and evolved into triathlete at the peak of a lone triathlete. He had had experience. Competition seemed to follow naturally.

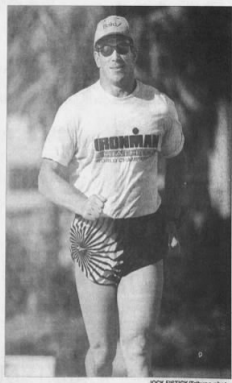

Like most first-time Ironman competitors, Cannon has some concerns about his chances of finishing Saturday. She knows the
