TIFFANY & CO TO HOLD MOST LAVISH PARTY

"IT WILL BE A NIGHT TO REMEMBER" — STEPHANE LAFAY, GROUP VICE PRESIDENT, TIFFANY & CO, ASIA PACIFIC AND JAPAN

THE most fashionable and well-to-do in Singapore will gather this evening at Dinner Wine Society at Parkview Square for the American Glamour soiree hosted by Tiffany & Co. The occasion is in grand celebration of the fine jeweller's grand and will include a presentation of the latest collection to the 50 esteemed guests.

In particular, the focus will be on the pieces of art nouveau style, which are highly appropriate for current times. This style is a specialty of Tiffany's director of design, Louis Comfort Tiffany, who is recognized as one of the leading experts of art nouveau in the U.S. Tiffany's fashionable designs are admired by all the most prominent members of society. Patrons of the company include families like the Astors of Waldorf-Astoria hotel, the Hamersleys of the American Sugar Refining Company, and the Vanderbilts, who are in shipping and rail.

Besides the art nouveau style, another specialty of Tiffany is fashions of colored gemstones, especially the ones to be found in the U.S. The company's geologist, George Frederick Kunz, was the man who introduced, for the first time to jewelry making, tourmalines from Maine, sapphires from Montana, Utah's topazes and garnets, and pearls from Wisconsin and Arkansas. These unusual stones are used in the nature-inspired designs, which are a signature of Tiffany that began with its founding. Louis Tiffany's father and founder of the company, Charles Lewis Tiffany, was especially attracted to the harmonies in lines and clarity in colour of nature's creations.

The younger Tiffany continues this naturalistic theme by sculpting gemstones into berries, and green enamel into leaves. He gives dragonfly wings of black opals and platinum, and pans grapes and wild flowers on necklaces.

These masterpieces will be presented during the party to great effect on models dressed in the latest fashions of this year by British designer Jenny Packham and provided by retailer Trinity Gallery.

The cascading layers of ethereal silk chiffon, sumptuous draped satin and exquisite French lace are combined to create stunning dresses that are most feminine and glamorous.

Inspired by the leading ladies of the cinema, Packham's dresses exude a breathtaking beauty and timeless quality that perfectly fits with Tiffany's aesthetic.

Dapper actor Sir Penelope, popular jazz singer Alonzo Fernandez, French juggler Michael Bellemeun and tap dancing duo Ella-Mae Patterson and Lincoln Farnell will take charge of the night's merrymaking, delighting guests with songs, dances and tricks.

The MG TC Midget Test Drive

A Midget that's big on speed.

BRITISH car manufacturer MG Car Company recently released the new MG TC Midget, which it claims to be an update on the MG TB Midget. In truth, it is not very different from its predecessor on the surface.

The gearbox, engine and axle remain the same. Small improvements have been made to the body, which is now four inches wider for a very slight increase in spaciousness of the interior. The electrical equipment has also changed for the better, with one large 12-volt battery now instead of the two smaller ones that the MG TB had under its floor.

The most important change, and probably the only one that drivers can actually feel, is the improved compression ratio of 7.5:1. According to the MG Car Company, this gives the car more power, and helps it run more smoothly than the MG TB.

Karl Kasper's automobile expert, Alex Chems, took the MG TC on a drive through busy Manhattan streets and down a scenic highway in The Hamptons.

"I came back with the report, 'I had a good time speeding. The car accelerated from zero to 100 km/h in about 12 seconds! This is quite a breakthrough! I could also go up to a maximum speed of 128 km/h,'" he says of his experience driving the MG TC on an open road in The Hamptons. "Since it is an open-top two-seater, it is extremely suited to driving by the sea. I would suggest taking it for a spin by the beach on a sunny day as I did to enjoy the salt air blowing into your face and whipping your hair back."

On the busier roads of Manhattan, however, the car doesn't perform as well. "I was driving at 60 km/h - quite fast for the city, I would admit. I tried to brake to avoid crashing into a car in front of me," says Chems.

"But the MG TC continued to roll along slowly for 13 metres before it came to a complete stop! Imagine if there was a fixed obstacle in front of me, I would be in trouble. Luckily the car is front of me was an MG TB, which was also trying to brake, but equally slowly, of course, since our cars are of the same make. We rolled along together for 13 metres before we both stopped."

THE secret of this low price coupled with a performance which means only possible at a high price is the successful use in the 2400 cc Vauxhall engine of the Langheyer torsion bar system. IN DEFENCE OF THE FLAPPER

DESPITE POPULAR OPINION, THERE IS SOME GOOD TO THEM.

Couture Paul Poiret Couture David

WIDELY upheld publication The Literary Digest compiled, in a past issue, a collection of criticisms expressed by male who-mans, editors and clergymen, of the flapper girls.

"Too many of our young women are immoderately clad," declared C. H. Riddle, editor of The Christian Science in The Literary Digest. And there has only been "a change for the worse," as Saintsbury, editor of Pittsburgh Courier, believed.

However, a single voice of support had risen up among the ranks of dissidence. W. A. Harris, LL. D., corresponding secretary of the Board of Education of the past generations. After all, changes pioneered by each new generation are usually followed by an equal from members of the previous one. This is just another instance.

"What society - and of course, none - have not yet learnt to appreciate are the positive contributions brought about by these bold girls. The very recent 19th anniversary of the US Constitution on August 26 gave all American women the right to vote. This is perhaps the mark of a new era for women.

An acclaimed Italian novelist Alberto Pazienza had dramatically expressed in an article for Vanity Fair: "The home is no more! Neither is maternity! For how could she do that? The bearing of children constitutes motherhood!"

Flappers are leading a revolution of independence for the latter sex. They are factory girls, or they work as secretaries and clerks. Some are more sophisticated society ladies who are invited to all the most prominent parties.

These flappers, with their jobs, ambitions and vanity, have opened the doors to a whole new consumer segment. They have money to spend, and they will spend - especially on the frivolous and material. They smoke too much, drink too much and buy too many dresses that conceal too little. They may not have surpassed men as the most important consumers in the business, but they are catching up quickly.

The economy is benefiting from this insurgence of the flappers, so why are the men complaining? Their wives may no longer cook, clean or mend their socks, but does not a good conversation more than make up for a less-than-pristine home? Is not a lady of clever remarks and pointed but nice remarks than a woman who is flushed from scrubbing floors?

After all, a clean home can always be had by engaging hand help, who most likely will be a lady. In actual fact, society has always had working women. There are simply more of them now.

"THE HOME IS NO MORE! NEITHER IS MATERNITY! FOR FOUR WALLS DO NOT MAKE A HOME, NOR DOES THE BEARING OF CHILDREN CONSTITUTE MOTHERHOOD!"

Methodist Episcopal Church, produced in an interview with The New York Times. "The time will never be, probably, when the young folk are regarded in any other light than as best upon their own discretion and that of the entire human race. In my opinion, it all comes back to the old tendency of each generation to view with profound and self-righteous disapproval the new things ushered in by the new generation."

When viewed in comparison, the behavior of the flappers today is perhaps no more appalling than that of the dandies and coquettes of

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS DINE AT CENTRAL CHURCH

A most delightful mothers and daughters banquet was held at the Central Church of Christ Monday evening when a company of over 100 mothers and daughters sat down together and enjoyed a most tempting dinner prepared by Mrs. William Wytte and her committee. The men of the church, headed by William Wytte, waited upon the ladies with much cord. Mrs. Anna Smith paid tribute to the older mothers of over 50 with special floral gifts. Mrs. Ramsey gave two appropriate vocal numbers during the program.

GET A FIT FACE

Thick whiskers and thin whiskers, side whiskers and chin whiskers have been created by poets, parashute jumpers, and devotees of short lefty politics, owing to their dread of the razor. Now that dread is gone, never to return. Gillette's wonderful shaving cream softens the beard at the base and puts an end to the need of swabbing with hot towels and of rubbing the lather in with the fingers.

Ride Like a Knight

Whether on a thoroughbred or a spirited pony, you will look like a master if properly attired. And an essential contribution to the sporter of America's riding boots fashioned by Johnson and Murphy. For riding, walking, evening wear. A fashionable choice of designs, always associated with a gentleman's wardrobe.

GO DRY AND SOCIETY WILL DRY UP TOO

THE American hostility to salient, assertive and original men - the depressing and result of the operation of a hundred million inferior complex - is not only riding the national politics of genuine leaders, it is also riding the whole of the national culture of genuine leaders.

I know many men of ideas, and some of them are men whose ideas seem to me to be novel and profound. I don't know one among them who is not trying more or less openly with a notion of escaping from the United States.

It was Prohibition, of course, that probably put it into their heads, not Prohibition as a thing in itself - for surely no civilized man goes dry because of it - but Prohibition as a symbol of all the countless incursions and aggressions that now characterize life in the Republic.

One simple cannot live under so intolerable a tyranny of the stupid without losing one's self-respect. Above all, one cannot live under it and carry on the enterprises of a free spirit.

Some of these men propose to get out and stay out as soon as Europe settles down the exile they contemplate is the forthright and irrevocable exile of a Whistler, a Tolstoy, a Joseph Conrad or a Henry James. Others merely look forward to spending more and more time abroad themselves, coming here now and then to look at the rains. It is imaginable that there will be any compensatory immigration in the other direction?

Surely no sane man looks for it. No Agassiz will come, or Schurz or Hamilton, or Callahan, or Theodore Thomas or Stephen Girard. Every ship will be full of the hatched from the remote frontiers of civilization, but there will be no more Lucretia and no more Camille Baskins, yes, but not the O'Brien.

I doubt that they will be missed - that is, by the new guardians of the national virtue, the new palladium of malignant indignity, the new race of unsharpened right-thinkers. For what the right-thinker detests and dislikes most implacably is precisely what the rest of the human race regards as the superior man.

Wants no tears upon the bag in his willow; he is happy and his heart is pure. If you fancy that the sinners Only True Christians of the Mississippi or Kansas lament the fact that no genuinely distinguished man lives among them, that their suns are not assailed by bothness and their eyes and morals by Casseres, then you are far beyond the margin of permissible error. They actually delight in it. - George Jean Nathan and H.L. Mencken
