Ultimate Visibility with a Human Touch

Digital Journeys with a Human Touch

The partnership between you and Safmariners all over the world brings a human touch to shipping. We are fiercely passionate about your business and your cargo. And now we're raising the bar for your cargo care with Remote Container Management (RCM).

As your shipping partner for imports of fruits, vegetables, and other refrigerated goods, we want to contribute to your peace of mind by monitoring your cargo from departure to destination. Why? We simply think it's important that you know that your produce is in good hands.

Together with our dedicated Remote Container Management team, the technology allows you to plan your supply chain in a much more intelligent fashion than ever before. By observing every metric that contributes to the safe delivery of your goods, our specialists are able to give you complete insight into the state of your cargo, and it lets us work with you to react quickly in case something doesn't look exactly as it should.

This creates the most agile and dependable environment for your refrigerated goods. Because your peace of mind is our passion.

Agile shipping

You get a bunch of data that can help your decision-making during your cargo's journey. Based on the information generated by the Remote Container Management dashboard, you can decide in advance to reroute your shipment to a different market, or to eliminate the risk of contaminating a clean warehouse at destination.

Location tracking

You get real-time updates on the location of your container and how many days it's been travelling. This lets you quickly determine the true shelf life of your goods and provides a layer of protection in cases of theft or tampering.

Relationship care

Remote Container Management gives you the perfect foundation to take care of your partnerships. When you know the state of your cargo before it is delivered to your customers, you can take a proactive approach when needed.

Supply Chain Visibility

With Remote Container Management, you can ensure that all vendors in your supply chain are held accountable to their promises. The data you receive lets you examine that your cargo was kept at your requested settings throughout its entire journey.

Peace of mind

The Remote Container Management dashboard gives you a clear insight into your cargo's journey. This means no more surprises when you or your customer opens the container.
