'Chocolate In Your Pocket'

After a relatively quiet year in 2020, DejaVilla returns dressed in their unmistakable talent with 'Chocolate In Your Pocket'. The track is a catchy number with soulful melodies. Bringing in culturally-driven forces is what DejaVilla reckons with best. Not to mention, combining funky electro beats and Kingston-inspired hooks, passes the vibe check. This track is fresh, groovy, and will put you right into a paradise.

DejaVilla forges fluid soundscapes to define the fabric of their signature sound.

Finding most of their artistic inspiration at their home base, Jamaica's capital city saw DejaVilla flourish. Although the team has been acquainted since their school years, they spent years traveling solo, fabricating the inspiration that ultimately led them to their magnum opus in 2017- DejaVilla.

As of today, DejaVilla collaborates long-distance between London and Kingston. But there is no amount of space that could water down the distinguished nature of their music. Producer/songwriter David Marston lives in the United Kingdom crafting ethereal dance riddims as Sarah Couch adds a signature Jamaican flavor via patois-tinged vocals and sensual lyricism.

More About DejaVilla

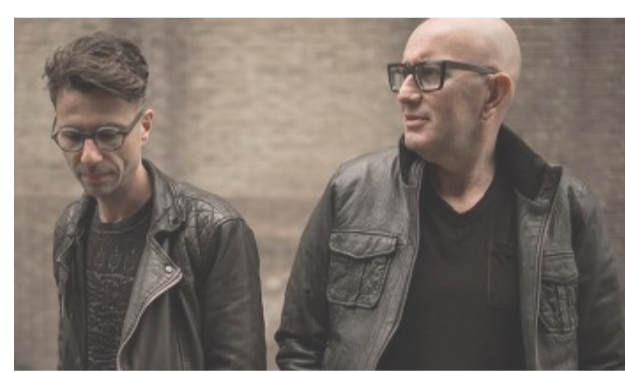

Signed to Ultra Music in 2018, was Dejavillas debut single 'Suit A Rebel'. Quickly following was 'Feel Me Running Away' featuring Kat C.H.R. Then, in 2019, the duo released 'Ochi to Mobay,' an ode to sexual liberation and fierce self-confidence. Additionally, their self-titled debut EP, also released in 2019, was a shotgun blast that led to a New York City tour. DejaVilla saw themselves at various venues like Alleycat Amateur Theater, Soho House, Ludlow, Harman Store, and Elsewhere.
