

The highest point on Earth has now reached its lowest moment.

Join Josh Duhamel, Molly Simms, and other Hollywood stars for the Run for Nepal. Together, we'll run or walk to raise crucial funds for earthquake victims in Nepal.

May 17, 2015—Santa Monica, California—On April 25, 2015, a magnitude 7.8 earthquake struck near Kathmandu, Nepal, killing about 9,000 people, injuring thousands more, and damaging more than 600,000 structures in Kathmandu and other nearby towns.

Immediately after the quake, the Nepalese government declared a state of emergency, and hundreds of thousands of people remain trapped in rubble waiting for crucial medical assistance.

In response, Josh Duhamel, partnering with the charity This Time Foundation, is hosting a two-mile run or walk on Santa Monica Beach for people of all ages to raise funds for critical medical aid and help rebuild schools in Nepal.

Let's make a difference—one step at a time.
