How to Remove the Quick Notes Shortcut From Your Desktop

For MacOS

With the introduction of MacOS Monterey 12, Apple included a shortcut to Quick Notes via the existing "Hot Corners" feature as a default. As helpful as it may be, it has the unintended side effect of hiding the lower right-hand corner of a window, and prohibits a user from resizing the window from that corner.

1. In the top left hand corner of the desktop, select Apple menu > System Preferences.
2. The System Preferences window should now be open. Do one of the following:
    - Select Desktop & Screen Saver. Once opened, select the Screen Saver tab.
    - Select Mission Control.
    - Search for either Screen Saver or Mission Control in the search bar, and select the illuminated option.
3. Select Hot Corners....
4. Click the pop-up menu that has Quick Notes, and change the option to **-.
    - At this point, you could adjust any other Hot Corners to your liking.
5. When you are done, click Ok.
