To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to you on behalf of Chris Collora.

I have spent time in newsrooms, from The Miami Herald and Newsday to the New York Daily News, and lived through the transition of journalism from the ink-stained print cycle to the multiplatform, non-stop push of online media. Collora is the best of both worlds.

I supervised Collora at AOL startup Patch.com, where we worked together for three years. I never met someone who fit the description of a newsman better than Collora.

He'll use whatever tools are at his disposal to get the job done. But where Collora really excels is as a videographer and storyteller.

I can't say enough good things about Chris Collora. He's an asset to any newsroom.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Jason Molinet". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.
