By Long Island Press Staff tbolger@moreypublishing.com Friday, November 8, 2019 1:30 PM

Long Island Music Hall of Fame (LIMHOF) inductees will perform at a holiday concert that will raise funds for music education and show off the group's new mobile museum.

Performers will include to-be-announced LIMHOF inductees and friends, as well as performers from six local high schools — including students from Farmingdale, Great Neck, Longwood, Queens, Uniondale, and St. Francis Preparatory School in Fresh Meadows — that were recognized this year for their music programs by the organization.

“We are excited to bring sounds of the season and of Long Island together at the very special concert,” said Ernie Canadeo, chairman of the LIMHOF board. “Those that attend are in for an amazing show. The talent we have on the Island is to be celebrated and the money raised at this concert goes to our music scholarship program.”

This will also give the public and attendees an opportunity to see the interior of the new LIMHOF Mobile Museum, a tour bus that honors the 100-plus Long Island inductees into the Hall. All concertgoers will have access to the bus in front of the venue before and after the show.

The show will be produced by the Long Island Music Hall of Fame. The legendary Larry “The Duck” Dunn of Sirius XM radio will act as emcee for the evening.

LIMHOF recognizes the significant achievements of musicians who were either born or spent a significant part of their career in Nassau, Suffolk, Queens, or Brooklyn. The nonprofit also supports music education on Long Island through Educator of Note recognitions, scholarships for music students, and school visits.

Long Island Music Hall of Fame Presents A Very Special Family Holiday Concert is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 17 at The Space at Westbury Theater, 250 Post Ave., Westbury. Tickets are $15 for general admission tickets or $25 VIP seats. For more information visit limusichalloffame.org

Legendary Hip-Hop Group, EPMD, Set To Attend The Long Island Music Hall Of Fame Holiday Concert

by BWW News Desk Nov. 15, 2019

Long Island hip-hop group, EPMD, announced that Parrish Smith, Erick Sermon, and DJ DIAMOND The Artist will all be attending The Long Island Music Hall of Fame's Holiday Concert on Sunday, November 17 at 2:00 PM at Jovia Presents The Space at Westbury Theater in Westbury, NY.

Brentwood's EPMD is one of hip hop's most influential groups. The legendary duo of Erick Sermon and Parrish Smith, known together as Erick and Parrish Making Dollars, established themselves as The Kings Of the "hardcore" hip-hop scene with their funk-based grooves. Through the years, EPMD has produced a long list of gold-selling albums which always feature the word "Business" in the title. Some of their most well known records include "Strictly Business," "Unfinished Business," and "Business Never Personal." Over time, the increasing acceptance of their hardcore sound eventually gave way to their 1993 Number One hit "Crossover." In addition, their imaginative lyrics and funky grooves made their music in demand on MTV, and in movies like 'Juice,' 'Barbershop,' and 'Whip It.' EPMD was inducted into the Long Island Music Hall of Fame in 2018.

The Long Island Music Hall of Fame Holiday Concert is a family friendly event that will feature performances from LIMHOF Inductees and friends, as well as students from six High Schools that were recognized earlier this year for their music programs by The Long Island Music Hall of Fame.
