

For the third consecutive year, Fenway Cares will be distributing Thanksgiving turkeys to the neighborhood. This year the organization has 140 turkeys to give away.

Fenway Cares is a collaborative organization between Audobon Circle, The Fenway Civic Association, The Fenway Alliance, The Fenway Community Center, The Fenway Community Development Corporation and Operation P.E.A.C.E. / Peterborough Senior Center.

The idea to distribute donated turkeys materialized when developer Samuels and Associates approached the Fenway Civic Association with the idea during the pandemic in 2020 “as a way to support families during COVID.”

“While we appreciated the offer, we felt that Fenway Cares would be a perfect fit for a food- based outreach effort,” said Marie Fukuda, Co- Chair of the Fenway Civic Association’s Parks and Open Space Committee.

Samuels and Associates has since continued to supply the turkeys and offers volunteers to help distribute them.

The Fenway Community Center will be open for pickup on November 19 between 9:30am. and noon for those who reserved a bird. Around 40 to 45 turkeys are being delivered to residents with mobility issues.

In addition to supplying turkey donations to the neighborhood, Fenway Cares also hosts a bi- weekly donation known as “East and West Fens Free Food Boxes” at the Fenway Community Center and Symphony Community Park.

The food boxes are given away every other Wednesday from 3:30 to 4:30pm and include “fresh veggies, fruits, grains, and more.” The next scheduled event will be on Wednesday, November 23.
