

sorry that she had a poor culinary experience, but I do ask that you do me the service of printing my response, so that those guests of ours that read your magazine are not left thinking that we would levy such a ridiculous charge for a cup of coffee, as good a cup as it may be.

Salary Review

I WAS VERY DISAPPOINTED BY THE SMALL range of industries in your November salary report. There was nothing on graphic arts, accountants, advertising, etc. As you wrote, we aren't all doctors and lawyers as our parents would've liked . . .

Video Star

I WRITE IN ACKNOWLEDGEMENT of the probing and intriguing article on video director Bryan Barber ("A New Direction," by Chandra R. Thomas, October 2005). It was with great pride that I read an article penned by one of our department's dynamic former students about one of our creative filmmaking grads. Her article exposed the trials and tribulations Barber encountered on his rise to professional greatness and gave us an in-depth and personal look into the high-pressure world of video production.
