

Today was a big day for Doris, she was going to ask her parents if she could go on summer vacation to Hawaii with her best friend and her family. She had lots of feelings building up inside her. She was nervous, she was excited, and she was questioning whether her parents will say yes or no. She waited for the perfect time to walk downstairs and ask the big question. She sat both of them down and started with saying how responsible she was and how she ended off her school year with all A's. Her parents were kind of questioning why she was having this conversation with them. She then continued to say that her friend Emily and her family invited Doris on a week adventure in Hawaii for the summer. Her parents immediately said no, with no reason why. Doris was very upset because she had worked very hard all school year to be able to have the freedom her parents promised her for summer. Doris was questioning her parents for the next week. Her main question was why, but her parents never gave her a reason they always said because we said. Later that week Doris's parents sat down and had their own conversation about this summer trip. They had doubts because they wanted to keep their daughter safe. eventually they came to an agreement that they would let her go if she kept herself cell phone on her, and checked in with her mother and father every night.

The next morning Doris had woke up still frustrated. She was angry at the fact that her parents didn't give her a reason, but she knew she had to respect what her parents wanted her to do. She went downstairs to grab breakfast when she had seen her parents sitting at the countertop waiting for her. She had asked " why are you guys sitting there?" They simply said they wanted to talk to her. They had explained her all the rules if she went and they gave her the rundown on safety. Doris was very excited, she called her best friend and told her that her parents let her go after all. Later that night Doris started packing her bags for this very exciting trip. Little did her parents and Doris know that this vacation would change everything in Doris life.

The next day Doris left off to her friend Emily's house with the biggest grin on her face. Her parents came with her just to ensure that her child was being taken care of. When they walked up to the door Emily's parents answered. Emily's parents looks so stunned sing Doris's parents almost like they saw ghosts. Doris's parents notice this behavior and asked if something was wrong. Emily's parents didn't say anything but they greeted the family and let them inside. They packed the car up and was ready for the airport. When they got to the airport Emily's family asked some weird questions hat made Doris a little questionable about Emily's family. Some of the questions were, what does your family do for a living? Do you know where they go every day? Does your family love you? They were very odd questions, but she just did the questions off and try to enjoy her vacation.

Eventually they arrived in the beautiful state of Hawaii. They got to their beautiful resort and unpacked their bags. Emily and Doris shared a bedroom and her parents had their own. The first couple days were very normal and very fun and exciting. Doris checked in with her parents every night and every morning just like how she agreed. On the third day of the big trip in Hawaii Emily was sound asleep but her parents were still up in the room. Doris decided to walk to the kitchen to get herself A cup of water when she heard talking. It was not normal because it sounded like three grown men talking. But obviously there was only Dorseys Dad, she listened in a little closer because of the questions she was asked the other day. She noticed that they were speaking A different language so she couldn't understand. Eventually Emily's parents started speaking English to each other. The only thing she makes out of the conversation was that Doris's parents were the target. As soon as Doris heard that she tremble to her room and texted her parents immediately.

Her parents were asleep back in the state of Arizona so they did not see this text until the early morning. Doris was absolutely frightened but did not want to say anything to Emily. Emily and her parents notice that Doris was acting very funny,so they kept a close watch on her. For the next two days Doris did not speak to Emily or her parents. She stayed in her own corner and minded her own business. At the same time Doris's family was speaking to Doris and asking her questions that were very questionable. Such as what are Emily's parents talking about? Are they speaking different languages? Did they say any information about a treasure? Doris was scared for her life because now she couldn't trust anybody. Little did Doris know Emily was watching Doris behind her back and reading Doris was sending out. Emily then went to her parents bedroom and told her parents everything. Emily came up with a plan to kidnap Doris while she was sleeping and use her to get money and the treasure from Dorsey's family. Little did Doris know that she was a part of a spy family, and her best friend and her family were the criminal spies. Eventually Doris was putting two and two together and was freaking out because she was in a whole different state. Doris's family cut the first flight to Hawaii thinking they were going to grab their daughter and this was all gonna be over. Little did they know Doris it was already taken away in the middle of her sleep.

Doris woke up in a cold dark room. She only saw Emily and her family. She was frantic and asking where her phone was and where her parents were. They told her to be quiet and taped her mouth up. Little did they know Doris had a tracker on her phone because her parents were prepared for this type of thing to happen. As Doris's family was on their way they put two and two together on why Emily's family was so strange when they first met. They knew in their gut that they were not good people and they felt guilty for letting their little girl go. Eventually Doris's family got to the location where she had her phone ping too. They busted down the door and saw Emily's family was not there. Only her daughter was there crying and scared. She had asked what was the truth and what was going on. They explained everything to Doris about who they were and who Emily's family was. It had all come together and made Doris question her whole life. They went back to the state of Arizona and saw that Emily's house was up for sale. Ever since that day they had never seen Emily or her family again.
