

Fastest Growing Indoor Plants

Empty spots in the home are never too appealing. It is always nice to put a decor to give that lifeless corner a life! There is no better option than plants when filling up an empty space. Plants provide your floor with an aesthetic feel and add value to your life by keeping the pollution away.

If you are planning to create an indoor garden or are already an indoor gardener, you must know the level of patience it takes to grow the garden. Waiting for your plants to grow is similar to ordering food and waiting for the delivery man. You know that feeling, right?

Okay, now moving on to the solution of your impatience. There are two types of plants. One, that takes time to grow regardless of whatever you do, and second, the fast-growing indoor plants. These wonderful plants have rapid growth and will fill up your indoor space within a few weeks. Amazing, no?

What Is An Indoor Plant?

If you are new to this, first you should know about indoor plants. An indoor plant, also known as a houseplant, is primarily used for interior/decoration purposes inside homes, offices, or restaurants.

These plants are preferred due to the ease it provides to the owner. It is comparatively easy to plant them and take care of them. These plants do not require regular watering and long hours of direct sunlight and survive roughly and toughly throughout.

These tropical plants require indirect sunlight as too much light can damage the leaves. Watering them once a week is usually enough as the soil surface will remain humid for the plant's growth. Unlike other plants, the life span of these indoor plants is approximately 3 to 5 years.

List Of Fast Growing Indoor Plants

After thorough research, here is a list of 7 fast-growing houseplants for successful indoor gardening.

Spider Plant

You must have seen this fast-growing plant swinging from the hanging baskets in hotels or cafes. Spider plants are the fastest-growing plants, the perfect plant for minimalists.

This plant can grow up to 3 feet. Keep the soil moist but avoid soggy soil. These plants grow in indirect light as direct sunlight can burn the leaves. Keep baby plant attached to parent plant till the growth of roots.

Snake Plant

Snake plant, also known as Mother-in-law's tongue, is yet another fast-growing indoor plant. This wonderful plant is preferred due to its adaptability. These plants grow in bright indirect light and has snake-like patterns on it.

Wandering Jew Plant

Wandering Jew plants is loved by new indoor gardeners. Why? Because it has low maintenance. They have fast growth and grow new shoots rapidly. Bright light helps in producing rich foliage, resulting in beautiful colored leaves.

Aloe Vera

Aloe Vera is a well-known plant for its healing and other medical properties. You will need to water it frequently to avoid dry soil; however, frequent watering isn't necessary for winter. Keep these plants indoors but make sure they get full sun for good growth.

Pretty yellow and white flowers are a plus.

Peace Lily

The peace lily is a flowering plant and has a quick growth habit. It can grow up to 20 to 40 feet long in just a couple of years. But, the more impressive part is, it doesn't need a lot of water or too much sun. It can grow effortlessly with sufficient light without making you take care of it now and then.

Jade Plants

The Jade plant is a succulent plant and can grow up to 5 feet in no time. If you get attached to your plants, then this is for you. It has a long life span and will stay with you longer than others

It has thick fleshy leaves with a woody stem and the full-grown plant resembles a miniature tree.

Purple Passion Plant

This plant needs bright light and a medium amount of water to grow. Although it has many other properties, the deep purple and gorgeous leaves steal the show, but this color vanishes as the plant grows.

Put the above-mentioned fast-growing plants in your indoor garden, and there will be no place for more plants. Happy gardening!

