

Shatter the Stars by Abby Arbeiter 1/25/21

How do we live under the moonlight?

What can come of the serenity of shattering stars?

Oblivion is inevitable, even if we deny it continuously with our passion.

How do we live under the moonlight?

It brings comfort, becomes shelter, and a place to stare. It shines on us, and we're happy to witness the moonshine gazing down upon us, watching and whispering as it illuminates the shroud of darkness.

How do we live under the moonlight?

We live our reality, how we cope with ideas is only how we understand our world. It's what keeps us breathing.

What can come of all the questions we ask? How are we supposed to know what is to come? The answers are ones that have been engraved into the land before we took a breath. The waves of flowers along hillsides. Sunlight dripping into the hot summer air. Trees swaying in the breeze. The tide rises and falls with the moonlight, always moving. It doesn't stop. And neither do we.

What can come of the serenity of shattering stars?

We are more than what we've ever known. We must persist in our fight, never withholding the truest parts of ourselves.

Despite it all, there is a reason. There is a choice that can be made.

Oblivion is inevitable, even if we deny it continuously with our passion.