

Peck School of Arts

SPOTLIGHT

Book co-edited by PSOA Associate Dean wins national award

- UWM Report

Kim Cosier, Professor of Art Education and Associate Dean of the Peck School of the Arts, is one of the co-editors of a book that just won a national Stonewall Book Award. [Read More]

Making a place for insects in our world

- Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

Art & Design faculty member Katie Martin-Meurer tasked her 3D Concepts course with creating "insect hotels" in hopes of raising awareness for declining insect populations along the Lakeshore State Park. [Read More]

Film undergrad receives silver at CINDY Awards

- Sheboygan Press

Freshman film student, Elizabeth Johnson, has received a Silver CINDY (Cinema in Industry) award for her locally produced film, "Cognizant Folk Project." [Read More]

The limit does not exist: Leah Gilliam is a creative who codes

- Forbes

Leah Gilliam, MFA Film alumna and VP of Strategy and Innovation at Girls Who Code, sat down with Forbes to discuss her career shift from art and academia to game design and STEM education. [Read More]

Joffrey Ballet's reimagined 'Nutcracker' inspired by Chicago history

- WTTW Chicago Public Television

2009 Theatre BFA alumna Eleanor Cotey speaks with WTTW-Chicago as the Head of Wardrobe for Joffrey Ballet and their reimagining of the holiday classic "The Nutcracker." [Watch Now]

STORIES

Meet Isabel Cortes, a Community Arts major in our Department of Art & Design. Last semester she worked on a 90-foot x 10-foot public mural honoring the struggle of migrant workers and other immigrants who arrived in southeastern Wisconsin more than 50 years ago.